FRENCH EXPRESS WRECKED

PARIS, Jan. 6.—A train on the Western Railroad filled with passengers was wrecked at Rambouillet, about twenty-five miles southwest of this city, today, and the shattered cars were consumed by fire. A dispatch received by the railway officials an hour after the wreck occurred said that the loss of life had been heavy. A newspaper dispatch, said that at least twenty-five had been crushed or burned to death and more than 100 injured.

The train was derailed and the cars crumpled up into a tangled heap of twisted steel and shattered beams. The wreck is said to have been caused by a careless employe leaving a switch open. The coaches caught fire from the flames in the boiler of the locomotive and a number of those who were rescued were nearly burned to death before their bodies were dug from the wreckage.

Wrecking crews and doctors were rushed to the scene, and ambulances were ordered from the Rambouillet hospitals. Houses about the scene of the disaster were temporarily transformed into hospitals for the injured.

Rescuing parties worked with frantic haste to clear away the debris which pinned scores of wounded men and women in the path of the flames.

A special train carrying physicians and nurses was sent from Paris as soon as news of the disaster was received.

BRAND WHITLOCK IS BARRED FROM CHURCH

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6.—Because of the liberal views held by Brand Whitlock, the notable Mayor of Toledo, he has been denied the privilege of speaking in the Pilgrim Congregational Church of this city. Mayor Whitlock was to have addressed the Federation of Women's Clubs, but the Rev. Daniel Bradley, pastor of the church, objected to Mayor Whitlock occupying his pulpit, so the meeting has been moved to the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

$1,000,000 FIRE LOSS; MANY HURT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 6.—The $1,000,000 power plant of the Minneapolis Electric Company on the East Side was destroyed by fire and an explosion to-day. Several men were seriously injured, and two of them will probably die.

The plant was the main power station of the electric company and its destruction left the entire city without light or power. The street car service was also disorganized, as the traction company has its own plant. Fifteen men were trapped in the building at 7 a. m. when the explosion occurred.

The imperilled men fought their way through the flames and smoke and finally escaped. John Rymond, one of the employes, was knocked down by a falling beam as he was emerging from the building, and his arms were broken and his body badly bruised.

Joseph Rhodes also had a very narrow escape from death. He was severely bruised and burned and his clothing was burned from his body.

James Meicalfe, who was at work in the switchboard room at the time the fire started, said he believed the explosion was caused by a "blow out" on the board. He could not explain what caused the rapid spread of the flames which destroyed the entire plant within three hours.

Power used by the telegraph company was furnished by the plant and as a result of the fire the only communication between this place and outside points to-day was by telephone. The electric company sent a large force of men to Taylor Falls to-day to put an auxiliary plant there in commission. Officials of the company announced that they would have arrangements completed before night for the lighting of the city.

Sixteen engine companies, by hard work, prevented the fire from spreading to the Pillsbury "A" flour mill, the largest in the world.

BURNED POWER PLANT OWNED BY BOSTON INTERESTS

Most of the directors of the Minneapolis General Electric Company are Boston business men. The Boston directors and executive officials are: E. S. Webster, J. W. Hallowell, Henry R. Hayes, George C. Lee, Russell Robb, Philip Stockton, Charles A. Stone, F. D. Trask, vice president; Henry R. Sawyer, treasurer, Alva K. Todd, secretary. The company's offices are at No. 147 Milk street, Boston, the offices of Stone & Webster, trustees agents for the General Electric and its managing corporation. The Old Colony Trust Company of Boston is the agent for the Minneapolis plant, with power to register transfers.

The Minneapolis General Electric is listed in the Boston Stock Exchange. Its annual meeting was held last Monday. It was incorporated January 11, 1909, under the laws of New Jersey, with an issue of $1,500,000 of common and $1,000,000 of preferred stock. It operates under a perpetual franchise, supplying dynamo power and light to the entire lighting and power business in Minneapolis.

$35,000 in Free Prizes for American Readers

Did you ever try to save up $8,000 or any other sum which you had determined upon in advance, and did you ever quite make it?

If you did, it took a good many trips to the bank, didn't it, and a good many setbacks in the form of necessary withdrawals? It took a good deal longer than a year in which to accomplish the feat, didn't it, and a good many unhappy reflections on the futility of trying to get ahead.

Any time we have saved $800—TO SAY NOTHING OF $8,000—the operation has been attended by the deprivation of many pleasures and comforts. It never was done as easily as it may be in the AMERICAN'S $35,000 contest, where the one who is the most successful will be given absolutely free a beautiful $8,000 residence, situated at Riverside, Mass.

Success in this contest means a true victory—financial as well as honorary.

One Thousand Prizes.

One thousand prizes in all will be actually given to 1,000 AMERICAN readers. Look over the announcement on another page of to-day's AMERICAN; you will find in the list magnificent Touring Automobiles, the world's best makes of Grand Pianos, Speed Motor Boats and $78 other valuable articles that any one would be glad to be the owner of.

This is the most stupendous opportunity that ever presented itself to newspaper readers anywhere. If YOU fail to take advantage of it do not bewail your "hard luck" then and say you could. AMERICAN reader take possession of a handsome new $8,000 residence next Summer or sit at the steering wheel of one of the handsome touring Automobiles.

And do not bemoan your fate next Summer if, because you neglect this wonderful opportunity, and your next door neighbor or friend is the sole and undisputed owner of a 1911 completely equipped, Speed Power Boat. The time to feel badly about it is right now, when you can remedy things, and not next Summer when your next door friend or neighbor is sailing out in the harbor in his own private boat.

To enter the contest it is necessary only to clip out the ENROLLMENT BALLOT which will be found in this paper, fill it out with your name and address and forward it to

AMERICAN CONTEST EDITOR,
P. O. Box 237, Boston, Mass.

As soon as the ENROLLMENT BALLOT reaches the AMERICAN office the candidate who has forwarded it, receiving a credit of 1,000 votes, provided said ENROLLMENT BALLOT is received before January 10, the date the contest opens, and the first vote appears.

Send Only One Enrollment Ballot.

Many of our contestants are sending in several ENROLLMENT BALLOTS. This is unnecessary and, moreover, does not do you any good, and causes the Contest Department a great deal of inconvenience. Only ONE ENROLLMENT BALLOT is necessary from each contestant, and the 1,000 vote credit is given only on the first ballot received. Many of the contestants seem to think that the ENROLLMENT BALLOT is a vote. This is not the case. It simply is a record for our files that you intend to enter the contest and save the voting coupons which will begin to appear in the AMERICAN on Sunday, January 15.

We cannot too strongly impress upon all contestants the necessity for using great care in writing the name and address on the ballot in your own. Fill in ENROLLMENT BALLOT carefully; it, perhaps, will save you a great deal of trouble later on.

Turn to another page of the AMERICAN at once and read carefully the contest announcement, which you will find there. It will give you in detail the list of prizes and the rules under which the contest will be conducted. After you have done this, if you have not already ENROLLED, do so at once, and get credit for yourself of 1,000 votes which is granted to each contestant who ENROLLS before January 10. Only the first ENROLLMENT BALLOT counts.

PAUL BOYCE, BOY BANDIT, WHO WAS SENTENCED TO-DAY

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR BOY BANDIT

Paul Boyce, the fifteen-year-old boy, who last night held up Miss Ellen McHale, on Sheffield road, Winchester, pointing a revolver in her face and demanding money, was to-day sentenced to the Lyman School for Boys at Westboro.

In sentencing the boy Judge Edward S. Johnson declared that he was so abnormal that he should be confined for the rest of his life. The sentence that was imposed is the heaviest possible for a boy of his years.

Was On Probation.

The boy was sentenced on an old offence, that of breaking into the Wedgmere station of the Boston & Maine last January. He was on probation for that offence.

Last August Boyce attained notoriety because of his connection with a series of robberies in Navy Yards. For a time the Navy Department officials had been baffled in trying to apprehend the guilty party. Boyce was finally captured after a desperate struggle and on August 27 Boyce, then thirteen years old, was arrested and charged with pulling the entire outfit.

About four weeks previously the Metropolitan Atlantic Diesel station at Digby had been entered and all the money it contained stolen. Boyce confessed that he did it, explaining that he broke into the station at 7 a. m. in broad daylight, and then walked fifteen miles along the track with his pockets bulging with silver and other coin. He spent the greater part of the money in Annapolis he following day.

After that the Summer colony at Argonaut knoll became agitated because of the number of cabins that had been robbed. Boyce was eventually arrested.

Showed Where Loot Was.

Accompanied by an officer, he was taken back to Argonaut knoll and there in all nooks of hiding places, revealed gold and silver watches, gold pencils, silver pocketbooks, diamond rings, bank books, railroad tickets, money and other valuable articles.

Miss McHale was held up while going to the home of H. Z. Cook on Sheffield road, Winchester. The youth pointed a revolver at her and demanded her money. The young woman screamed and ran up the street, pursued by the boy.

She ran into the home of Henry C. Metcalf at No. 31 Sheffield road and told her story. One of the occupants telephoned to the police. A governor's platoon was sent out. Patrolman McCauley recognized the boy from a description as the youth was boarding a car and arrested him.

GOV. FOSS EARLY AT HIS DESK

Governor Foss began his first day as Governor to-day by breaking out to depart from the usual routine of his life. So he got up at the same hour, ate the same breakfast at the usual time, left home at the usual minute he has left on other mornings and caught the same train downtown from Jamaica Plain.

"I am still going to keep the same early to rise part of the old motto," said the new Governor this morning. "I guess the old saying of living has done good service and kept me healthy enough to warrant my sticking to the old hours. I don't see any need for a change."

Governor Foss arrived at 6:30 o'clock, the hour that has become the habit for rising with him.

Breakfast at 7 O'Clock.

Governor Foss didn't have to yawn, for he felt perfectly rested.

At 7 o'clock he had his usual breakfast with the family. This was stewed prunes and one dropped egg on toast.

"That's what I always have," said the Governor. "I like prunes and I like the dropped egg on toast. They are fine. Coffee? I never drink coffee. Other things? There are no other things for breakfast for me. Just plain prunes—home-cooked prunes, and just one plain hen's egg on a bit of toast. That's good enough for me."

The Governor left his home in Jamaica Plain at 8 o'clock, to catch a train into the South Station. That was what he has been doing every morning for years. He arrived at his business office on Oliver street at 9:30, and set to work clearing up his mail. Even this was his usual routine.

The Governor had planned to be at the State House by 10, but he detained by telephone calls and other minor matters. At 9:50 o'clock he called his private secretary, Dudley Holman, at the State House, by phone and said that he would be at the executive office at 10 o'clock, and he was on hand promptly.

Finds a Huge Mail.

His mail was a big one, having accumulated in spite of his efforts to keep abreast of it. He read over such business letters as required his personal attention, dictated correspondence and gave his whole attention to the pressure of office affairs.

But at 9:50 Mr. Foss became Governor again for a moment. He called up his private secretary, Dudley Holman, at the State House, and asked if anything had come up requiring his immediate presence there. Being told that nothing urgent had arisen, Mr. Foss told his secretary he would be at the State House about 11 o'clock.

At 10:45 the Governor strode out from his Oliver street office and walked to the State House. He was greeted right and left by business and political acquaintances, to whom he nodded briskly.

He arrived at the State House on the stroke of eleven and entered the big building by the little door on the Bowdoin street side ordinarily used by the Governors, going in the House elevator he was greeted by Robert Taylor, the veteran elevator man who counts Mr. Foss as the twelfth Governor he has carried in his car. Taylor knew Governor Foss well, having seen him at the State House.

Greets Veteran Employe.

"Good morning, Governor Foss," said Taylor.

"Good morning, Robert," responded the Governor, as the car shot upward.

Striding through the third floor corridor, the Governor was at the door of the executive offices in two minutes from the time he arrived at the building.

At the outer office door he was greeted by Executive Messenger Reed. Returning Reed's greeting he kept on to the Governor's office proper, where he found Dudley Holman, his new private secretary, waiting for him.

Mr. Holman told the Governor that Henry M. Whitney called at the executive office at 10 o'clock.

This visit by Mr. Whitney holds more than ordinary interest to the public mind because it was Mr. Whitney who, only a few days ago, came out with strong indorsement of Senator Guild, whom Governor Foss is fighting to a finish. Mr. Whitney seemed quite disappointed the Governor was not there when he called. He said he would telephone the Governor later.

Brother a Caller.

At 11:15 Charles Harlow was announced. He was a Congressional secretary for Governor Foss when the latter was representing the Fourteenth District at Washington.

At 11:30 the Governor posed for a staff photographer from the AMERICAN. Five minutes later the Governor's brother called. He is Congressman George E. Foss of Chicago, a Republican. The presence of the two brothers, sent to Washington by opposite political parties, was a feature of the personnel of the new Congress.

At 12 o'clock a delegation came from the State Committee, consisting of Representative Norman White of Brookline and Frank Pope of Lowell, Representative White, it will be remembered, went to Providence to campaign for Senator Lodge on the night when Governor Foss began his famous anti-Lodge tour of the Cape, starting at Provincetown.

SENATORSHIP ELECTION BILL

Anticipating a deadlock on the United States Senatorship in the Legislature, Senator Hour of Concord filed a bill in the Senate to-day calling for a special election to be held the fifth Tuesday after the passage of the bill to allow the people to express their preference for Senator, prior to that date the Legislature shall have elected a Senator, the bill becomes void.

The bill is a duplicate of the Oregon system which resulted in the election of a Democratic Senator by a Republican Legislature after the people had expressed their choice in favor of the Democratic candidate.

To carry out the purpose of the bill introduced by Senator Hour to-day, it provides that the members of either party in the Legislature may hold a caucus and make such nomination. A nomination may also be made by nomination papers signed by ten members of the Legislature who do not attend a party caucus. Signatures appearing on more than one nomination paper shall be void. BROKER HELD IN $3,000 ON FRAUD CHARGE

Victor M. Weil, president of the Inter-Trust Security Company, was arrested after a raid upon his offices in the Winthrop building at No. 7 Water street, at noon. Weil is charged with using the United States mails in a scheme to defraud. Weil's financial operations in the last two years involve more than $1,000,000.

OFFICE EFFECTS SEIZED AFTER WEIL'S ARREST.

The arrest was made by United States Deputy Marshals Waters and Rohl. With Court Officers Tighe and Cameron and Postoffice Inspectors Perkins and Gustafson they went to Weil's offices at noon. Deputy Rohl immediately placed Weil under arrest. With the two deputy marshals he went to the Federal building and sent for his counsel, former Assistant District Attorney Guy A. Ham.

Miss Blanche Morton, of No. 20 Concord square, a stenographer in Weil's office, and Arthur B. Moorehouse, of No. 33 Weil street, Medford, were escorted to the Federal building by Deputy Marshal Rohl and held there as witnesses against their employer. Moorehouse was employed as an agent.

Weil was taken before United States Commissioner Hayes. He was not required to plead and was held in $3,000 for a hearing next Wednesday. When the amount of bail was set by the Commissioner, Miss Morton, his secretary, who was seated within the rail, attracted the attention of Weil and, opening her hand bag, handed him a large roll of bills.

The other officers searched Weil's offices as soon as the arrest was made. All the books and correspondence in the office were seized. Only a stenographer was in the office besides Weil when the raid was made.

Has Sold Stocks.

Weil is well known about the city as a stock broker. On his office door the name of the Inter-Trust Security Company appears, under it the words "Transfer and Plant Agents. Below this appears Registrars of the Boise-Thunder Mountain Railroad."

The warrant under which Weil was arrested also charges him with being involved in the affairs of the Standard Amalgamated Exploration Corporation.

The complainant assisted Weil is Hattie Mitchell, Box 32, Malden Mass. Weil is also connected with the Old Glory Exploration Corporation. The charges against him are based on his selling stock in that corporation.

Weil also conducts a paper called the Mining Review, a medium through which he advertised his schemes.

In Trouble at Hyde Park.

Weil came to Boston from New Haven. In 1905 when he was publisher of the Hyde Park Sentinel he incurred the enmity of the residents of the town. It was claimed that he sent appeals outside the town for help for poor people, whom the town had always well cared for. At a mass meeting in Hyde Park he was hung in effigy because of the appeals for money.

Weil each year gave an excursion for one or 500 Boston orphans usually at Paragon Park, Nantasket.

He is a member of several Jewish charitable societies.

APPEAL FILED TO SAVE JORDAN

Lawyers for Chester S. Jordan, convicted of the murder of his wife Honora, to-day filed their appeal which will be carried to the United States Supreme Court if they succeed in getting a writ of error. Jordan was brought into court this afternoon for sentence by Judge Dubuque.

The arraignment was before Judges Stevens and Bell who presided at the trial when Jordan was convicted. District Attorney Higgins asked that sentence be imposed. Attorneys Bartlett, Pratt and Sullivan appeared for Jordan. They asked for a writ of error and a stay of sentence.

Jordan was notified late yesterday that he was to appear in court for sentence. He received the news with the same lack of emotion that he did the news that the appeal for a new trial had been denied by the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

The news was told to Jordan yesterday afternoon by the counsel, Attorney Jeremiah J. Sullivan. The brother-in-law, Fred M. Kendall, was the last of Jordan's relatives to call on him in his cell in the East Cambridge Jail. He said that Jordan appeared calm and the same as he did all through his trial, when no emotion was traceable in his manner.

ENGLAND RESENTS PERSIAN AGREEMENT

LONDON, Jan. 6.—According to what is purported to be the text of an agreement between Russia and Germany on Persian affairs printed in an evening paper here, Germany disclaims any political interest in Persia and recognizes Russia's interests in northern Persia. Russia, on her part, agrees to co-operate in building the long proposed Bagdad railway to the Persian Gulf and to give German commerce in Persia equality of treatment. This important point is quite likely will be resented by France and Great Britain as disloyalty on Russia's part to the entente.

50 INJURED IN SPANISH RIOT

LISBON, Jan. 6.—Several were killed and fifty were wounded today in a pitched battle between Spanish soldiers and rioters at Zocta, Spain, according to advices received by Senalo today. The rioting was the result of the high prices of food.

Four thousand strikers attacked shops and the public buildings and when the soldiers arrived a battle followed. The soldiers with drawn arms at acked the mob, but the mass was so compact that it could not be scattered.

Volleys were fired on both sides, and all the windows in the houses near the scene of the battle were broken by flying bullets and missiles. There were many women among the rioters.

Men and women, gaunt and famished, fought with desperation side by side. Many of the soldiers who were wounded are thought to have suffered fractured skulls from the flying clubs and stones. Zocta is in the Province of Sargossa, where labor troubles have prevailed for some time.

GIRL IS SHOT; ACCUSES YOUTH

EXETER, N. H., Jan. 6.—Nora Nagle, eleven years old, is in a serious condition at the Cottage Hospital after having been shot by Willie Hart, Jr., sixteen years old, a brother of Eddie Hart, who captained the varsity eleven at Princeton last Fall. The girl insists the shooting was deliberate.

"Yes, I saw Jim put the bullet into the gun," she told Dr. W. H. Nute, one of the attending physicians.

The girl is the daughter of John Nagle, a farmer, living about fifteen miles out of Exeter on the Hampton Falls road, but attends school in Exeter. Nora stopped at Hart's home on Washington street to see his two younger sisters. Willie Hart, it is alleged, came in with a 22-calibre rifle, and taking aim toward the ceiling, pulled the trigger. The gun failed to go off. Then he pointed the gun at the girl, but it again missed fire.

When she started to go he followed her, it is said, and fired it for sport again, saying: "I'm going to shoot you anyway," he claimed.

There was no mishap this time. The ball passed through the girl's body. She was taken to the hospital, where an operation was performed. The bullet was found in her clothes. The police have taken no action.

LEE URGES CARE OF TUBERCULAR PUPILS

"Boston ought to make much more adequate and systematic provision for tuberculous and pre-tubercular children than it has yet begun to do. Some of these children ought to be looked after in a sanitorium." This was the statement made by Joseph Lee, of the school committee at the meeting of the Roxburghe Club this morning. Mr. Lee said the case was exciting interest in open-air school at Franklin Park. "The marketing of those, including all the pre-tubercular, probably well over 5,000 in all, ought to be cared for by the public schools in open air rooms where a midmorning lunch is provided at cost. Until the other and adequate provision is made for the children that are too sick for the schools they should be taken care of in the school at Franklin Park."

MELBOURNE, Australia—Parliament has appropriated $218,700 for its buildings at Canberry, New South Wales, the new Australian capital (43).

NEW SUBWAY PLAN APPROVED

The Board of Railroad Commissioners and the Boston Transit Commission, acting jointly under an act of the last Legislature to consider improved transportation facilities, to-day recommended to the General Court the construction of a subway from Park street to the south Station.

The joint bodies also favor the construction of a subway from the South Station to Andrew square. The two bodies report unfavorably on the West End loop.

They favor the extension of the Cambridge tunnel to complete a subway to the South Station. According to their report made public to-day they state that the Park street station of the Cambridge subway has been so constructed as to make the extension of the tunnel to the South Station feasible.

Tube to Cost $2,600,000.

The construction of such a tube would cost, it is estimated, $2,600,000. The Andrew Square Subway is estimated to cost $3,500,000.

The plan proposed for the South Station subway is to have it pass under Winter street, connect with the Washington street subway at that point and thence continue to the South Station under Summer street.

The Andrew Square subway, as proposed by the joint boards, is to start from a point 500 feet south of the proposed subway station in Atlantic avenue, near the South Station, running under Fort Point Channel and Dorchester avenue, with a station at the junction of Broadway and Dorchester avenue and a substation for terminal near Andrew Square.

Two Plans Turned Down.

In recommending this construction the commissioners turn down the two plans for an extension of the subway systems existing either to Marine Park or to Milton. They declare that either of these two plans are too expensive and are not warranted by the number of people who are to be served.

The West End loop is turned down by the joint commission for the same reasons. They declare that to part of the section of the city to be served by it is distant from existing facilities. They declare that it would injure parts of the section and be a duplicate of the most expensive portion of the Tremont street subway.

The commissions declare that the trend of the section of the city to be served by the loop is in another direction, and that transportation facilities cannot controvert such tendencies.

LODGE AWAITING ELECTION VERDICT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Senator Lodge has returned from Boston. He expressed himself as highly gratified with the reception he received at Symphony Hall Tuesday night. Asked if he would go to Massachusetts again before the date the Legislature has set for electing his successor, he replied in the negative. "I shall remain in Washington now and await results," he said. "I have done all I can. My work is finished and I shall have to hold my hands until it is all over."

CHAUFFEURS SENT TO JAIL FOR 60 DAYS

George, a prominent citizen, were each sentenced to sixty days in the county jail, and to pay a fine of $200 and the costs of prosecution.

Good Advice About Eczema

Eczema is so common and so many people suffer from it in one form or another that in medical circles the advice is sometimes jokingly given to call every doubtful skin eruption eczema. This is really not bad advice, for if the eczema treatment fails, then the disease is plainly something else. A good plan, whenever there is an eruption, is to apply Cadum. If there is itching, Cadum will stop it, and the sore places will heal. In other forms of skin diseases, such as redness, pimples, blotches, rash, roughness, scaly skin, chafings, acne, sores, ulcer, eruption, hives, tetter, itch, herpes, psoriasis, ringworm, itching piles, etc., Cadum will also be found highly beneficial. By all means try this remarkable remedy, and satisfy yourself as to whether your trouble is eczema or something else. Trial box, 10c.

DOUBLE LEGAL STAMPS FORENOONS

SECRET OF ELKINS ROMANCE IS BARED

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Held confidential under a pledge of secrecy during his life, the death of Senator Stephen B. Elkins permits the revelation of the true reason why the marriage of his daughter, Katherine, to the Duke of the Abruzzi of Italy, did not take place.

As told in confidence to the AMERICAN'S informant by Senator Elkins it was a case of an American father insisting that his daughter should either be given full recognition as a wife with all the honors appertaining to Abruzzi's position as a member of the royal family of Italy, or, failing this, the Duke should renounce his allegiance to King Victor Emmanuel and become an American citizen, offering in the latter case not only to establish the Duke in business here but to give the young couple a princely fortune as a marriage settlement.

In the end it came to a question between the Duke's loyalty to his King and the traditions of his family and his love for Miss Elkins. Loyalty and tradition won.

Here is the gist of the story as told by the Senator himself:

Father Was Willing.

When Mr. Elkins was apprised of his daughter's love for the Duke more than three years ago, he told intimate acquaintances that if his daughter wished to marry the Italian nobleman he would give his consent. Eventually, when the Duke asked the Senator for his daughter's hand, Elkins expressed to Abruzzi his utmost confidence in him and his belief that Miss Elkins' future would be happy with him.

Then came the obstacles. The Duke, elated, went to the court of Italy, and breathed his secret.

Instantly there arose the problem of the status in the court that the Duke's wife would have. The royal family discussed the situation and opposition to the marriage sprang up. Miss Elkins, it was decided, became the bride of the Duke could assume the title of Duchess, but could not assume the position in court life.

Royal Family Stubborn.

The Duke argued in vain. So, unable to move the royal family, he came to America and consulted Senator Elkins.

He suggested that, perhaps, after all, Miss Elkins would be satisfied with the title of Duchess even without a fixed place in the royal court.

"Is that so?" replied Senator Elkins. "Well, I don't care much about my daughter not having the title of Duchess and I don't know that she cares much either. But if my daughter becomes the wife of the Duke of the Abruzzi she will be his wife in every sense of the word. I mean what I say. I do not object to a money settlement, if that is the thing to do, not at all. But I want my daughter to be the wife of the man she marries and to hold the same position of wife that any woman would in our own country here. Do you catch my meaning?"

The Duke confessed sadly that he did.

"Well, then, see what you can do," was Elkins's retort.

The Duke went back to Italy and tried to argue the royal family over to Senator Elkins's views. He repeated what the Senator had prompted about a marriage portion, and also the inexorable terms. The court was immovable. Miss Elkins could not be received as one of the family.

Senator Elkins's Offer.

Post haste he sped to West Virginia and sorrowfully related what the royal family had told him. He impressed Senator Elkins as his daughter's equal, and then they pass laws that take away her standing as a parent and deprive her of control of her children.

"Now, if strikes me that is reasonable enough. I know my daughter loves you and I believe you love her. Now, I want to make you both happy. Think it over."

The Duke, a relative of the King of Italy, was too loyal an Italian to go contrary to the royal desire. He fought the battle out in his heart—and love for his country won. He had to tell Senator Elkins that he could not accept his proposal and would have to give up the idea of marrying his daughter.

FIRST MRS. ARNOLD SUES THE SECOND

Mrs. Alice M. Arnold, who claims to be the wife of Sheffield A. Arnold, a Boston landscape artist, has brought suit against Mrs. Virginia Edwards, or Mrs. Virginia Edwards Arnold, for damages of $10,000, alleging the alienation of the affections of Arnold. The suit is a new phase of a marital complication which came to public notice in November of last year, when Mrs. Arnold, who lives in Dorchester, filed a libel for divorce against Sheffield A. Arnold, alleging that he had deserted her and her son, and naming Mrs. Virginia Edwards Arnold. Mr. Arnold and the latter woman were married at Reno, Nev., last Summer, after Mr. Arnold had secured a Reno divorce from his first wife, alleging incompatibility of temper.

MISS PANKHURST, WHO SAYS WOMEN WILL WIN BALLOT

MISS E. SYLVIA PANKHURST

GOOD NEWS TO SUFFRAGETTES

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of the famous leader of the English suffragettes, is in New York and will address a meeting of the suffrage workers and their friends in Carnegie Hall tonight.

She has come to tell the suffrage legions in America what their sisters are doing in England.

"We English women are overjoyed at the advance of the suffrage movement here. It is in capable hands," she said, "and I believe come over simply to tell them what we are doing in England.

"Two years ago we were treated with contempt. Now, the compromise bill which we accepted as the first step toward general suffrage, is past its second reading and if we can get it before the House again, it will be passed by a majority nearly twice as large as the Government has for its own measures.

"They passed a law that all children of the stage must be out of the theatre by 9:30 in the evening. Numbers of them are, of course, the children of actresses in the play. They used to have waiting rooms for them. Now the children have to sit in the street until their mothers appear.

"When we ask for the vote they say, 'a woman's business is to look after her children,' and then they pass laws that take away her standing as a parent and deprive her of control of her children.

"I am only giving you a few examples. I could go on this way indefinitely. The proposition is that men cannot make laws for women. You American men are of a broader and higher type, apparently, but there is plenty of work for women's ballots to do in the United States."

CATERPILLAR UPON LEAF OF WOMAN'S HAT

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 6.—A conductor on a Walnut street car brushed a large, sleek caterpillar from an artificial leaf on a feminine passenger's hat. "It's one of those fuzzy caterpillars we have in autumn, too," the conductor said, apologetically, as he tossed the specimen into the zero temperature outside.

CHILLS? IT'S GRIP!

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a Wonderful Remedy for Grip, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, Consumption, and All Throat and Lung Troubles.

Grip is an infectious disease, which attacks weak and strong alike, especially if the blood is sluggish, and generally involving the mucous membrane of the air passages from the nostril down to and including the lungs. Serious complications are liable to develop in the course of the disease, as grip settles in the weakest part of the system, sometimes the kidneys, the brain, the stomach or the heart, resulting often in heart failure, but the most dreaded of all, pneumonia, which is particularly fatal when arising from grip.

The fatalities resulting from this disease within the past few years have sufficiently aroused doctors to the importance of giving the disease the closest investigation.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a remarkable remedy in the prevention and cure of grip, coughs, colds, influenza, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, pneumonia, consumption, and all diseases of the throat and lungs; it prevents complications and bad after effects that grip so often leaves in the system. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey not only assists in killing the germs, but it stimulates the blood, aids digestion and tones the action of the heart.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

has to its credit fifty years of success, without a question as to its merits as a curative agent. It is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating stimulant and tonic. During this time it has brought the blessings of health to overwrked men, delicate women and sickly children who find in it the strength-giving properties that are so necessary to them. It makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous. It is prescribed by doctors and recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine, as it is absolutely pure and contains no fusel oil. It is sold only in sealed bottles; it makes the sick well; it is never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00 a large bottle. Write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for an illustrated medical booklet containing testimonials and rare common sense talks for health and doctors' advice, both sent free.

EDDY-STETSON STORY REVIVED

A remarkable interview with an alleged member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, the Mother Church of Boston, said to have been at one time a member of the Eddy household, is published in today's New York World, wherein the correspondent for that newspaper in this city states that the directors of the Mother Church "precluded the case of Mrs. Augusta K. Stetson and announced three weeks before Mrs. Stetson was summoned to Boston that the New York woman would be excommunicated.

The report declares that Judge Clifford P. Smith, first reader of the Mother Church, announced to a friend that Mrs. Stetson's fate was determined long in advance of the session at which she was arraigned for heresy. It goes on to say that Mary Baker Eddy loved Mrs. Stetson and that their friendship of twenty-six years was unimpaired up to the time of the forcing of an alleged rebuke to remove the New York woman from membership.

Dissension Story Repeated.

Meanwhile, it is stated in the article, dissensions exist among Christian Scientists, between those who maintain with the five directors that Mrs. Eddy is dead, never to return, and those who, like Mrs. Stetson's followers, affirm that the founder of the faith will return, and will "demonstrate" over death.

The informant of the World's correspondent goes on to say: "I am not now in the confidence of the directors, of the men who have taken charge of the earthly remains of Mrs. Eddy, but I do know that Mrs. Stetson is not alone in her belief that Mrs. Eddy will prove her demonstration, though she seems to be alone in affirming it publicly.

"It is only right to state here and now that Mrs. Eddy frequently spoke of the decision to not expected to make over there. She did not say the world had died. On the contrary, she said she would, and all would, in this generation at least, experience the thing known as death. But she often told those of her household and a few of her intimates that she was confident she would prove there was no real death, by returning to heal her church and the world on to eternal victory.

Mrs. Stetson Constant Visitor.

"Mrs. Stetson in the old days was a constant visitor at the house of Mrs. Eddy, and they spent many hours together. The founder of Christian Science often spoke of her student in the fondest terms."

No explanation is made in the World's story as to the reason for Mrs. Eddy's action last Spring in writing to the members of the First Church in New York and advising them to abide by the action of the directors of the Mother Church, or excommunicating the former New York leader. It is regarded as inevitable that Mrs. Eddy acted on other than her own responsibility.

STEAK IS TAFT'S "ONE BEST BET" AT A BANQUET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—President Taft is beginning to feel the strain of official entertainment, both in his own and other homes and his friends say he has made the fact known to those who are to be his hosts. One of his favorite dishes is a good steak, and always when he is at home for dinner he has an individual steak and plenty of bread served to him. Somebody whispered this little trait of the Presidential appetite to somebody else, and word was passed along the line until those who are to entertain the President now have no fear of serving something which will not be to his liking.

15,000 PERISHED IN EARTHQUAKE

TASHMENT, Russia, Jan. 6.—Reports from Russian outposts on the edge of the earthquake death belt where refugees have taken shelter, stated that the dead in the Turkestan calamity may number 15,000.

The relief columns of soldiers dispatched to the scene have made little progress owing to the vast cracks in the earth around which they have to make detours. It is believed that at least a score of populated communities have been destroyed. New rivers have been formed by the upheaval of the earth.

The town of Prjevalsk, a community on the banks of Lake Issik kul is said to have been totally destroyed and many of its 10,000 inhabitants killed or wounded.

MAN SURRENDERS; TRIES SUICIDE

BROCKTON, Jan. 6.—After giving himself to the police following a drunken spree, Arthur Holt, aged twenty-seven of No. 32 High street, attempted to end his life with a knife in his cell. He inflicted two jagged and deep wounds in his throat and made twenty stab wounds on his breast near the heart. Physicians at the Brockton hospital, to which he was removed, say he cannot recover.

DENTIST SAYS HE SOLD KISS

Heirs of Mrs. Rebecca Lord, who died in Cleveland last February, are contesting her will, which bequeaths the most of her estate, amounting to $50,000, to Dr. Jonathan F. Black, formerly of Cambridge. Dr. Black on the witness stand in Cleveland, according to dispatches to the AMERICAN said that he gave up a good practice in Cambridge seven years ago and went to Cleveland.

He also said that in the few years that he had known Mrs. Lord he had kissed her and had written her letters almost daily. The doctor also testified that in the past ten years he had kissed at least a dozen women, most of them old enough to be his mother.

Dr. Black testified that he had sent Mrs. Lord gifts of flowers, fruits and candy, and at one time sent her a pet fox terrier. "I lived at Mrs. Lord's home," testified the doctor, "but I didn't pay for my board. I did work around the house. I carried the coal downstairs and cleaned out the ashes."

Dr. Black also testified that he had kissed Mrs. Harriet M. Jennings in Cambridge. When Mrs. Jennings died he was found that she had left Dr. Black $500, and Mrs. Sophronia Day, another woman the doctor said he had kissed. Mrs. Day died at the age of ninety years and the doctor received $1,000 from her estate.

Dr. Black's mother was found in Erie, Pa., a detective agency in Erie was ascertained that the doctor often sent her gifts. "I bought the presents with money I won with my kisses," said he. Dr. Black asserts that under the will's legacy from Mrs. Lord he has a bank account of $50,000.

TRAINED ELEPHANT REFUSES TO WORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—A brand-new United States mail wagon was going through Forty-second street when an axle dropped and the front end dropped to the pavement. A rope was tied around the wagon and hitched to a street car, and the demolition of the wagon seemed already in sight, when one of the volunteer advisers ordered the rope to halt. "Here comes an Indian elephant," he yelled. "She will set everything right, just as they do in India." The elephant, no rope yarn for Hiram Thrasher, was pressed into service. But "Minnie," the elephant, refused to budge when harnessed to the load. She seemed the vulgar work of hauling. She had been trained for the stage.

GAME WARDEN FREE ON HUNTING CHARGE

William A. Robinson of East Bedham, a plumber and game warden, was discharged in the Bedham court today after being tried on a charge of hunting in Norwood on Sunday. Robinson was arrested by William H. Leonard of Foxboro, who he also a game warden. Leonard told Judge Grover that he found Robinson in the woods with a gun and six cartridges in his belt. Robinson alleged the arrest was for spite only.

REPUBLICANS IN PERIL IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6.—Five deaths in the Senate since the adjournment of the last session has attracted attention to the fact that Republican control of the Senate throughout the 62d Congress hangs upon a slender thread. A deadlock in one or two Legislatures and a couple of deaths among Senators known to be in rather feeble health would result in the retirement of Republicans from power. As a result of the recent election the Republicans are stated to have a majority of only eight. A change of five Senators would give the Democrats control.

Senators Brown of Nebraska, Frye of Maine, Root of New York, Briggs of New Jersey, Burton of Ohio, Nixon of Nevada, Bradley of Kentucky and Dixon of Montana, will represent States which have elected Democratic legislatures, and if death should invade the list mentioned a Democratic successor would be chosen. Two or three Senators in this list are known to be in poor health, and there is the possibility of a deadlock in the legislatures of Massachusetts, Delaware and Rhode Island.

Taking into consideration all the elements of doubt the situation presents, Republicans realize their hold upon the control of the Senate depends largely upon continued good health of Senators and prompt action by the legislatures in several States.

NEW INSURANCE PROTECTION PLAN

Insurance Commissioner Hardison in his annual report to-day to the Legislature, recommends a law prohibiting any person from serving as a referee twice within four months in an insurance. This is intended to prevent companies from getting the better of the insured in the settlement of losses. He also presents a bill which will materially increase the reserve of every liability company doing business in Massachusetts.

HOLD INQUEST IN POISON CASE

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 6.—Believing that the wedding eve poison mystery, in which Miss Grace Elosser and Charles Edward Twigg met death, will be found, if it is ever solved, to have been a craftily planned and executed double murder, the State's attorney and police have decided, after five days' investigation of the crime to hold the formal inquest into the tragedy to-night. Summonses have been issued for nearly a score of witnesses, and the coroner may prove highly sensational, terminating with an arrest and a direct accusation of murder.

Every development in the case has made it more and more certain that there existed no suicide agreement between Grace Elosser and her fiance and the idea that either was induced to drink poison unknowingly by the other or that either had any desire to end the lives of both is considered equally improbable.

No Thought of Suicide.

Every action of Miss Elosser and Charles Twigg for days before their death indicated both to be in the happiest frame of mind, very much in love with each other, and joyously alive to the future. There are a score of facts that prove this to have been their condition of mind when they entered the parlor of Miss Elosser's house, out of which they were not to come alive.

"Murder was done I am convinced," said State's Attorney Roth, "and I have hope that the testimony that I will be able to bring out at the inquest to-night will point the path for me to be able to effect the solution of this unparalleled mystery."

Police Chief Irvine, on entering that the Elosser family have told all that they may know concerning the tragedy, went to the home to-day and conducted an examination of the father of Grace Elosser, her mother and, at 4 o'clock, Miss Ella Elosser, who was said to have quarrelled with her sister over Twigg. The girl repeated the denials that she has made again and again that she was not on speaking terms with her sister and that she was jealous of Grace because of Twigg. Miss May Elosser will be the witness at the inquest as will her parents.

First Knowledge of Death.

The greatest importance is attached by the authorities to the statement unqualifiedly made by Dr. Foard regarding the condition in which he found the bodies and the form in which the deadly cyanide reached the lips of the man and girl. From this statement, it is believed to be certain that a third person had knowledge of the deaths of Twigg and his sweetheart long before the discovery made by the girl's mother of the couple sitting side by side in death upon the sofa in the parlor.

Death came so swiftly that neither the man nor woman was able to arise from the sofa. Some third person must have removed the glasses or both from the room before the discovery of the bodies and must have removed the glasses from the grasps of Twigg and Miss Elosser even before they were dead, otherwise their hands would not have been tightly clenched. If they had held anything in their hands until death and the objects had been removed soon afterward their hands would have been forcibly open.

Little Harlan Norri still maintains that when he first looked into the room he saw Twigg and Miss Elosser with glasses in their hands. Other lads who broke up the door and peeked in and ran away frightened have been summoned to testify.

It was learned to-day that the doctors have one pounds of cyanide of potassium and sodaswas have been issued for men employed there. These may produce startling evidence of the source from which the poison was obtained.

COLLEGE CLUB TO GIVE PLAY

"The Spanish Gypsy," a play adapted from George Eliot's novel, will be presented by the Boston Wellesley College Club in Jordan Hall, Friday evening, January 20, and Saturday afternoon, January 21.

The work of preparing the play has been in progress since early Summer. The theatre has been arranged and songs and dances composed by members of the club. The cast includes: Lucy Orcutt, Mrs. Christabel W. Kidder of Cambridge, the well-known reader, and each of the Wellesley senior play list, year, has coached the performers for this performance, while the dances have been arranged by Mrs. James J. Storrow and Miss Lucille Eaton Hill. The girls who take part are recent graduates of Wellesley, and many of them took part in amateur theatricals during their stay in college.

The scene of the play is laid in Spain, during the latter part of the Fifteenth Century. It is a tragedy. Scenery and costumes are the result of much study and will be accurate representations of the times portrayed.

Wellesley girls in caps and gowns will usher at the performance. The proceeds will be applied to the fund for the erection of the Wellesley Students' Building.

Mrs. George C. Newman is general manager of the play. The costumes have been prepared by Miss Katherine Paine Jones. Miss Alice Shepherson, secretary of the Wellesley Club, is chairman of the committee in charge of the performance.

HUSBAND SAVES HIS WIFE FROM FLAMES

Quick work by Adolphus J. Roy probably saved his wife, Mary, from death by flames. Mrs. Roy was ironing in her home, No. 405 Athens street, South Boston, when the table upset, causing a lamp to fall. The flaming oil spread to the women's clothing. Roy seized a rug and wrapping his wife in it, extinguished the flames.

GIRL GYMNASTS EXHIBIT.

The annual exhibition of calisthenics, dumbbell drill, marching and esthetic dancing by Boston girls, under the direction of Professor J. J. Driscoll, was held last night at the Ward 9 municipal gymnasium. This was followed by an entertainment by members of the class. Three hundred and fifty persons were present.

BOY JOY RIDER GIVES SELF UP

The police of Hanover street station prepared to go before the Suffolk Grand Jury to-day to secure an indictment, under the new automobile law, against James A. Langille of Charlestown, eighteen years old, a night watchman at Cox's garage, No. 001 Commercial street, who has just surrendered himself to the New York police.

Langille is charged with taking a $4,000 touring car belonging to Charles R. Baldwin, transportation manager for the United Shoe Machinery Company, from the garage on New Year's night without permission and will wrecking the car while joy riding in a cab on a Dorchester girl.

The car was found the next morning in Bowdoin street, Dorchester, in bad shape. It gave every appearance of having skidded into a curb.

Dispatches to-day from New York say that Langille walked into the headquarters of the traffic squad and gave himself up. After telling his story Langille said he was homesick and "broke" and was willing to go back to Boston and take his medicine, as he expressed it.

Mr. Baldwin, owner of the car, lives in Andover and has an office at No. 205 Lincoln street.

A warrant was sworn out against Langille. A special patrolman, who has the case in hand, may be sent over to New York after Langille.

Langille lived at No. 405 Main street, Charlestown, with his stater, Mrs. Sidney Gray.

GENERAL HOSPITAL GETS ASHTON WEALTH

By a decision of the full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court the Massachusetts General Hospital will receive a fund of about $20,000, representing the residue of the estate of the late John Ashton of Newton. Mr. Ashton, who for many years carried on the lumber business in Spring Lane, accumulated a good deal of property. He died on May 14, 1907. His will was made on December 17, 1903. The legal dispute over his will arose because of the following clause: "All the rest and residue of my property shall be given to the Massachusetts hospital for diseased and wounded soldiers." The principal claimants for the money were the Massachusetts General Hospital and the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea.

J. E. SPAULDING, PIN MAKER, IS DEAD

WINSTED, Ct., Jan. 6.—J. E. Spaulding, president and treasurer of the New England Pin Company and the most prominent manufacturer in this community, died today from injuries received in a fall down a flight of stairs.

THE MOST PICTURESQUE WEDDING will be described in detail in the Sunday AMERICAN.

OLD HINGHAM HALL BURNED

Mrs. Edward Mullen and her nine-year-old son, Frank, were rescued during a fire early to-day which destroyed old Liberty Hall, in Liberty plain, South Hingham, and caused a damage of $2,000.

Mrs. Mullen and her son were asleep on the first floor and were almost overcome by smoke when several neighbors burst in the doors of their apartments and carried them to the street.

Building a Landmark.

The hall was seventy-five years old and one of Hingham's famous landmarks, rich in local historic value. It had been recently made over into a two-and-a-half story wooden dwelling, occupied by Edward Mullen and family.

The fire started near the roof of the building and is said to have been caused by a defective flue. Neighbors who saw the flames notified the fire department and then rushed into the building and rescued Mrs. Mullen and her son, who were the only ones in the house. By the time the firemen arrived the upper section of the house was a mass of flames, and it was seen the old structure was doomed.

Long Drive for Firemen.

To reach the blaze the members of the Hingham engine company were obliged to drive four miles from Hingham Centre through the biting cold, and they suffered severely from exposure. The barn in the rear of the old hall caught fire several times, but the members of Engine Company 3, with their hand tub, succeeded in saving the structure, while the other fire companies devoted their efforts toward saving other buildings in the vicinity.

WOMAN DIES BY GAS WITH TWO CHILDREN

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Victoria Hornung and her two children were found dead in their gas-filled flat to-day, the woman having turned on the gas cocks and then put one arm down to die with the children. The body of Emily, seven years old, was found beside the mother; the body of Stanley, thirteen years old, was found at the gas jet, where he evidently had attempted to turn off the gas and save the family.

NOTED SPEAKERS FOR HARVARD CLUBS MEET

President Lowell, Frederick P. Delano of Chicago, president of the Wabash Railroad; Former Attorney-General Herbert Parker and William F. Gurdon are to speak at the annual meeting of the New England Federation of Harvard Clubs which will be held with the Worcester Harvard Club at Worcester next Thursday.

MERCHANTS PLAN COURT OF OWN TO SETTLE DISPUTES

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The establishment of a Commercial Court for the voluntary settlement of business disputes among merchants has been decided upon by the New York Chamber of Commerce.

The court, which will be designated the Committee on Arbitration, may hear all business disputes among members of the board, and, by prior written agreements to be entered into by both parties to the controversy, its judgments will be as effective as those of the Supreme Court.

DEFENCE ISSUED BY MERIT BOARD

The Civil Service Commission annual report issued to-day defends the action of that body in regard to appointments to offices made in Boston under the new charter. The report says that the commissioners are not responsible for the charter, and it made hard work for them, but that they did their duty in what the law required. The report also says:

"The commissioners refused to be drawn into controversy. The duty of making final decisions was placed upon the commissioners. While no body can be infallible, they have arrived in each case at the only decision which, on the evidence before them, was compatible with their individual beliefs and their official oath. Such a decision on each appointment has been reached only after painstaking inquiry as to his status as an expert or as to special fitness for the particular position by reason of training, education or experience; and in every case solely on the facts found as to the qualifications or lack of qualifications of the appointee, and without regard to any other consideration whatsoever. The administration of the Civil Service law must be in its essence and only free from politics but entirely free from suspicion of politics. It is significant to note that, in every case except one the commissioners have been unanimous.

ALL ABOUT MADAME X—Most dramatic scene from this popular, soul-stirring play will be reproduced in the City Life Section of the Sunday AMERICAN.

INDICTED AS NEWTON SLAYER

The Middlesex County Grand Jury reported to Judge White in the Superior Criminal Court in East Cambridge to-day. One indictment of first degree murder was returned. The remainder of the list was very light, there being less than twenty indictments returned.

The Grand Jury made no report to-day on the Middlesex County graft investigation. The jurors went into secret session immediately after reporting to consider the charges of an alleged county ring. Two witnesses were before them all morning.

The murder indictment returned charges Giuseppi di Malo of Newton with murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Antonio Di Filippo also of Newton. A stabbing affray took place on November 20 in Newton during which Malo is charged to have killed Di Filippo.

Two indictments were found against Alderman James F. Black of Cambridge, charged with assault and battery and highway robbery upon William J. Donovan, a Cambridge politician known in political circles as "Chesty" Donovan.

The charges were the outgrowth of a quarrel when Aldermen Black charged Donovan with having illegal affiliations in a bog which he carried and took them away from him. Donovan sued Alderman Black civilly and obtained a verdict of $50.

GOAT GONE AFTER INITIATING ELKS

Stomach Sufferers Squander Millions

In Search of Relief.

Trial Package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Free.

The world is full of disordered stomachs and of poor men and women who are using medicines and drugs even in an attempt to cure the stomach.

People are unable to believe that its order to cure their stomach trouble they must first correct nature. So the doctor gets his fee for that stomach treatment and the druggist for the physic, until the savings of a lifetime are exhausted and yet no cure.

Let's be reasonable.

The sick stomach is in every case the result of over-eating, of rushed meals and of improper choice of foods. The stomach must do the work down the food that takes its second course, and when food is forced down the throat full of repast. They do not churn the food as they should. The glands no longer give out gastric juice to dissolve the food and render it capable of assimilation. The man has become a dyspeptic.

There is one sure way and only one to bring positive relief. Put into that stomach of yours the one substance that it lacks to-day—that food into liquid form. It takes certain glandular, golden acid and other ferments to accomplish this. The best of these ferments are contained in Stuart's Dyspeptic Tablets. The dyspeptic stomach lacks part or all of them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made up of just what he stomach lacks—certain digestive elements.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a medicine, not a drug, not a cathartic. They do not cure anybody of anything but Dyspepsia and indigestion and the many ailments arise from poorly digested food.

While they digest the food the stomach rests. The mucous membrane is coming out of its stupor, the gastric juice is coming to the surface, the muscles are regaining their power. Every organ of the body takes on new life, the skin gains color and the eyes are no longer ringed with yellow. You live.

Why doctor and why drug yourself? Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will take care of your food while Nature cures you.

NEW MYSTERY IN ROBIN CASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Herman Rabinowitch and his wife, the aged pair found in a squalid tenement in Williamsburg, who say they are the parents of Joseph (a Robin, the "skyrocket" financier and stock juggler, will be used by the State to prove that Robin is sane. Although both Robin and his sister, Dr. Louise Rabinowitch, declare the aged couple are impostors, they were summoned to the criminal court building to-day to testify before the Grand Jury. A hint that the woman physician is really Robin's sweetheart was given by the State, causing a new sensation.

The other man and his wife were paraded all night and on their way to court by detectives from District Attorney Whitman's office. Immediately upon arrival at the building they were taken into the District Attorney's room for a conference. It was expected that after a new proof of their parentage of the young bank speculator, refusing the recognition of Robin, the aged pair in their tiefit parents were now exiles in Russia.

Letters in Evidence.

Letters written by Rabinowitch and Mrs. Rabinowitch in which he addressed them as "My Dear Parents" are in the possession of District Attorney Whitman's office, according to a statement made by the latter to-day.

Mr. Whitman while asserting that the letters proved conclusively in his mind that Robin was the son of the aged couple, proof that Dr. Louise Rabinowitch, who calls herself Robin's sister, is their daughter was not forthcoming.

It stated, also, that Mr. Whitman "that while Mr. and Mrs. Rabinowitch identified and recognized Robin, it was some time before they seemed to comprehend the situation. Then Mrs. Rabinowitz finally said: 'He looks sounds familiar. It is strange that a mother should act in that manner toward a son she had not met for years.'

The greeting between Dr. Rabinowitch and Robin in my office also looked peculiar to me. It was in my mind, a little too effusive. Dr. Rabinowitch greeted her brother Robin looked to me more than a sisterly attachment.

Another Suspicious Sign.

Dr. Rabinowitch has declared in an affidavit that she is not the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rabinowitch. It seems to me peculiar to me that she came to this country in 1886, while they did not arrive here until a year later. She still uses the name differently also."

The history of the palatial residence, Driftwood Manor, located on an eminence overlooking the sound, near Welding River as told to-day, is the most extraordinary story yet revealed of the financial operations of Robin and deals also with the parties and revels in snow drifts and in the middle June.

It is also a story of high living extravagance and parties, according to the New York politicians and Broadway chorus girls that have sought out the favor of the social community for miles around.

A frequent visitor at Driftwood Manor during the days the skyrockets of Robin were shooting highest was Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall.

HOW TO DESTROY THE DANDRUFF GERM

BY A SPECIALIST.

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the worst cases of catarrh and consumption we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are, therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription which an eminent scientist says will kill the germ after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also stimulate immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair-growth after years of baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you: Six ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavoria de Composee, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly and after standing half an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the fingertips. If you wish perfumed, add half a teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which suits perfectly with the other ingredients. While this preparation is not a dye, it is unequaled for restoring color to the original.

CAUTION: Do not apply where hair is not desired and be sure to avoid tonics containing poisonous wood alcohol.

Before publishing we presented this prescription to Sherman Doig Co., this city, and they state that they have filled it many times for their patrons, who report most astonishing results from its use.

White House or 'Salt Creek' for Foss—Lawson

By THOMAS W. LAWSON.

"Governor Foss's inaugural settled at least two things, emphatically settled them—things will be doing in the Commonwealth and dedicating will be marching the highways and byways of the old Bay State the coming twelve months.

"Every one knew that the people rose last November, but most of us supposed they had not taken again, and until another election things would move along at the customary Bay State gait.

"The Governor's opening-up to made it plain the fun only started in November, and is just getting under way.

"What most interested visitors of the inauguration was the Supreme and Superior Courts. I could not envision the expression of the emotions of the dignified and conservative judges, as the Governor's clarion tones of reform rattled around the staid halls and reechoed the fine-honored traditions and caromed the most-revered precedents of the capital of the mother State of the greatest republic of civilization.

"Yes, the inauguration settled things, radical things, will be doing the coming twelve months, but only between the good done, but along the highways and byways of the old Commonwealth.

"What I took in the inauguration and tried to flag the potentiality of it all, I had a sort of crossbred, hybrid, nightmare vision and it chalked my peculiar blackboard among the stars.

"Eugene N. Foss, one another New Year is birthed, will be accomplishing it for the White House. He will be making some of those servants-a-minute political guides for the good bottom of Salt Creek.

"John J. Ingalls immortalized himself with 'Opportunity Knocks but Once.' If the old fellow wasn't kicking at Lagrange, Ga., these days, living with industrial knots, turn I am no judge of knocks.

THEATRICAL MAN ARRESTED AT SHOW

Daniel A. Gallagher, lessee and manager of two theatres in Manchester, N. H., had a lively experience in this city and while, for a few hours, he feared he might spend a sleepless night in the Charles Street jail, he finally regained his liberty. He walked into a Boston play house to witness a show and took a few seats in the rear of the house. Soon a booking agent, if he could let him have a certain seat for the night. He told him that that was where he wants to speak with you. "Beat" said the man at the door and asked "Have you got this act?" The man replied, "No, but I have got a warrant for your arrest." The stranger was Deputy Sheriff Cooper. He showed the warrant and furnished the necessary bail. The story is that Gallagher and Kelley have been doing business with one another for a long time and recently they disputed the accounts.

COPPER MERGER TO BE FOUGHT

The proposed $10,000,000 Calumet & Hecla merger plan has raised a tempest of indignation on State Street.

It comes from the intention to consolidate control of the leading copper mines of Michigan into one big company under the present Calumet & Hecla management on terms which minority holders of the various companies strenuously object to.

So strong are these objections that there is a likelihood that the deal will not go through in its present state. A sufficient length of time, however, is given before final action is to be taken so that the matter will be thoroughly threshed out before the meetings are held, Tuesday, March 7.

Stockholders Angry.

As it looks now the headquarters of the Calumet & Hecla Company at No. 12 Quincy Burton place will not be big enough to hold the many angry stockholders who are likely to make their presence known when the time comes. Apparently the Calumet & Hecla crowd takes this position: Here is our offer; what will you do with it?

The whole affair is to perpetuate the life of the Calumet & Hecla mine by adding to it. This process has been going on for some time as it has been observed that the lease of life of the present mine is limited. Mining is uncertain. Every ton of ore taken from the ground reduces the assets by just the value contained in that ton of ore, whether it be gold, silver, copper or lead.

Loss for Stockholders.

A speculator may attract them by speaking of the merger, and "it seems to me as if these scions of the wealthy Shaw and Agassiz families were long of family but dilatory and short of sound business judgment. The ashes of their fathers are hardly mingled with the dust of the new generation starts out in their fond hope that from upon in the old days of Alexander Agassiz now deceased, and Colonel Thomas L. Livermore, rather than to dissipate, have elected to let the present reorganization.

What is suggested is that all stock ownership in going to turn his stock over to receive but a half share of the new company which is to be formed will only receive one share a per cent?

The plan is said to be that the stock holders will go into this merger business for the 2,000 offered which is the equivalent of about $15 or $16 per share. Over $100 per share Boyle has been demonstrated to have a big future. The management, stock ownership of 15 per cent of the outstanding Isle Royale capital will have little chance of dictating to the others as per plan. Why George H. Haven can look the deal if he wants to. He interest in Isle Royale is larger than most people think and he does not go into a proposition without looking investigation.

Will Equal Plans.

"In this mix-up each mine will lose its identity and while some will make good others are likely not to. You can take it from me that the Calumet & Hecla people are not going to sell out together and spoil this piece of financing which will only help a few and result in destruction to the many.

"It seems peculiar to me that a mining engineer can go and examine a dozen mines and spend but three weeks on the job. It takes that length of time to examine a single mine in many cases. I guess the $25,000 check that this engineer received for his services came in handy, and we are pleased to show to his friends was of more importance than the examinations he made.

"You can stake my point that there will be some warm times before I turn my stocks over for the exchange. If I don't miss my guess there will also be some injunctions brought to prevent this merger and some pretty plain talk is liable to be heard.

"If this consolidation ever goes through the Boston market will be a dead one so far as speculation goes and the Stock Exchange had better look for smaller quarters rather than increasing them. Also the removal of ten of the most likely stocks that one would want for a lively market.

"A subsidiary stockholder when he votes to consolidate can never hope to receive the same proportionate advance in the new Calumet & Hecla mine that he might if he remained independent."

FOSS ENDORSED BY UNTERMEYER

The vigorous attack made by Governor Foss in his inaugural message against holding companies in general and the Boston Holding Company in particular is followed to-day by an indorsement of this same opinion regarding holding company schemes by Samuel Untermeyer, the noted New York insurance lawyer.

Mr. Untermeyer is one of the most expert men on corporation law in the country. It was he who took up the fight for the policy holders in the insurance scandals of five years ago.

Dispatches from New York give prominence to a warning uttered by Mr. Untermeyer before the New York County Lawyers' Association.

Governor Foss styled the holding company either "legislative conspiracies" or "financial subterfuge." He described both as intolerable.

Mr. Untermeyer called the holding company "a financial sham" and a "corporate disease."

Holding Companies Bad.

Readers will notice how the words of Governor Foss, in his paragraphs on public service corporations, parallel the words of Mr. Untermeyer with regard to the holding company phase of insurance evils.

From Governor Foss's inaugural:

"High hope are in my mind that I think the attitude of the State should be with reference to the great public corporations. In the first place, I see nothing inimical in the mere size of a corporation, provided, of course, it is suitably regulated.

"On the other hand, a holding company is in direct variance with the common law and with the constitution of the State. It is therefore indefensible."

Big Corporate Evil.

From Mr. Untermeyer's speech:

"A corporate abuse to which I desire to direct attention as requiring legislative notice is the financial vice known as the holding company. It is mainly responsible for the loss of public confidence in security values which is so largely the cause of the panic and depression.

"If you can get rid of the holding company, as you can, you will have abated the most serious of the corporate evils of the present day. The minority stockholder is the victim of the operation of the device. All of shares who may be more interested in destroying a competitor than in immediate returns on his recently acquired interest. The remedy is simple. Forbid absolutely any corporation from holding stock in another corporation. This does not mean that it cannot buy the property of another company, but that it must buy every interest it owns.

"Unless three-fourths both in number and interest of the stockholders of a company vote in favor of a sale, there should be no sale."

BIG BARGAIN SALE THRONGS STORE

Radical price reductions are announced by the F. P. O'Connor Co. "Specialists," at No. 157 Tremont street, in suits, gowns, coats, furs and, in fact, its entire stock of women's Winter apparel. The firm states that the offering is worth consideration, as only standard goods are carried. The sale is a large one, and in many instances prices have been cut in two. Throngs of appreciative shoppers are examining the suits, coats, dresses and furs offered at this sale.

MISSOURI TO HONOR MARK TWAIN BY SAVING OLD HOME

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 6.—One and perhaps two measures will be introduced in the General Assembly early in the session calculated, if adopted, to honor Mark Twain. Senator Frank McAllister of Monro will present a measure for purchasing the boyhood home of Samuel L. Clemens, which now stands within the corporate limits of Hannibal.

Representative Frank Sossy of Marion has prepared a bill appropriating $10,000 for the erection of a monument to the humorist. The site probably will be lovers' leap, a big bluff overlooking the Mississippi River, which is close to the cave Mr. Clemens made famous in Tom Sawyer.

REDMOND IN APPEAL SAYS ULSTER IS SAFE

LONDON, Jan. 6.—In an important article to be printed in to-morrow's Reynold's Newspaper, one of the most widely circulated weekly papers in Great Britain, John E. Redmond, the Irish leader, makes a stirring appeal to the people of England, Scotland and Wales to push on the movement of the people against the peers. In the most emphatic manner Mr. Redmond dismisses as idle and unfounded the alleged fears of the Protestants of Ireland that when Home Rule is an accomplished fact, their interests would suffer at the hands of the Irish Parliament.

Contending that as a result of the recent general election the veto power of the House of Lords is doomed, Mr. Redmond says:

"Premier Asquith has a complete and unequivocal mandate to settle the Irish question finally and with the least possible delay. The settlement is to be effected by a concession to the Irish people of full self-government in all purely Irish affairs. I appeal to the democracy of Great Britain to assist the Irish Nationalists in Ireland. Ever since the act of union has compelled the presence of Irish members at Westminster they have been the friends, champions and often the pioneers of the cause of democracy in Great Britain as well as in Ireland.

Fight Is Against Peers.

"It is a long time since patriotic Irishmen came to recognize that their quarrel was not with the overwhelming masses of British people, the enlightened middle classes and oppressed workers struggling manfully toward emancipation, but landlords, who have monopolized the power, wealth and land of the country, and who until now were able, by fraud, force or guile, or by all these combined, to speak and act in the name of the British people.

"In the struggle that is before us organized wealth and the most unscrupulous argument will be used, in order to array the masses of the British people from a sympathetic support of Irish pacification.

"It is already clear from the Unionist campaign that the chief ground on which home rule will be opposed by the forces of reaction and privilege will be the calumny that the Irish people are bigoted and intolerant; that the Irish Protestants would not be safe under the sway of a freely-elected Irish Parliament.

"In order to frighten the friends of home rule in Great Britain the so-called Ulster question is raised as the chief bugbear. There is no Ulster question.

"I contend that Ulster is not Protestant so exclusively as the people are led to believe. Statistics show it is more than 44 per cent. Catholic. The question as to Ulster being anti-nationalist was answered in the recent general election, when the home rulers held sixteen out of thirty-three seats in Ulster and obtained a majority on the total of 1,598.

"In the face of these facts and figures," it is the utmost folly to speak of Ulster as anti-nationalist, and in their light how absurd and ridiculous must appear the threats about Ulster lining ditches and offering armed resistance to home rule.

"It is to me a matter of deep regret that I should have to speak of Protestants and Catholics in this connection. Ours is not a sectarian, but a national, movement. If home rule were granted the Protestant minority would have equal rights and liberties with their other and Catholic fellow countrymen, who entertain feelings of deep respect and affection for them."

Unjust Religious Charge.

"There never was a more unfounded charge made against any people than that of religious intolerance or of persecution for conscience sake, made against the Catholics of Ireland. I could quote a host of eminent Protestant witnesses as to the spirit of tolerance of the Catholics in Ireland, both in the past and the present.

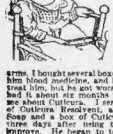
"But what shall I say of the spirit exhibited by the Protestant Unionists of Ireland toward the Catholics? It is a painful subject to touch upon, but in self-defence the Irish Catholics are driven to state the facts in the case.

"It is not Irish Catholics, but Irish Protestants, like Lord Pirrie and others, who assert that the only people in Ireland who practice religious intolerance are the Protestant colonists, where they have the power."

In concluding Mr. Redmond addresses himself to the argument as to the superior wealth and intelligence of Ulster, stating that the average assessment per head for the income tax is greater in Leinster than in Ulster.

HEAD WAS SCALY HAIR ALL CAME OUT

And Baby's Face Broke Out in Red Bumps. Spread on Hands and Arms. Tried Several Treatments, but He Got Worse All the Time. Mother Says, "I Don't Think Anything Else Would Have Cured Him Except Cuticura."



"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura. I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. F. Harmon, F. F. D. 5, Anoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910.

Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., Boston, for free Book on the skin.

"The Pipe of Desire," a one act opera by Frederick S. Converse, will be produced at the Boston Opera House to-night. It will be the first opera in English ever sung by the Boston organization.

"The Pipe of Desire" was composed four years ago by Mr. Converse and was produced in Jordan Hall shortly afterwards. George Dean, Bertha Cushing Child and Stephen Townsend, well-known concert singers, took the leading roles, the chorus was composed of members of the opera school of the New England Conservatory, and there was an orchestra of fifty symphony players. The opera was conducted by Wallace Goodrich.

The first performance of an American opera awakened much interest throughout the country, and the management of the Metropolitan Opera Company secured the right to produce it. The production was not made until last year when the Hadley management of the Metropolitan consented to give the opera after Mr. Converse had demanded that his work be produced or returned at once.

"The Pipe of Desire" did not have a fair hearing in New York. Some of the critics did not hesitate to say days before the first performance that it could not succeed. Toscanini took no interest in the score, and the American singers assigned to the chief roles mangled the English words most frightfully.

To-night's performance will be a fair test of the work. Wallace Goodrich, much paper in operatic experience than four years ago, will conduct. The audience will be entirely friendly to Mr. Converse and his work and if it is worth while it will surely get its deserts.

"The Pipe of Desire" is built upon guidfor themes like the Wagner operas. Mr. Converse studied in Germany and has always admired the methods of Wagner. There are four leading motives which occur again and again.

The story of "The Pipe of Desire" is very unusual. The scene is laid nowhere or anywhere. It is a sylvan glade whither come a troupe of fairies, gnomes and sprites to dispport. It is the one day of the year that they are visible to mortal eyes and Jolan, played by Ricardo Martin, a shepherd, discovers them. He snatches from the ground one, played by Ramon Blanchart, a pipe to play the sprites are dancing and tries to play it.

The Old One tells him it is the Pipe of Desire. It brings up a vision of his sweetheart to Jolan and he wishes that she were with him. Ysaye, played by Fely Decreme, is ill of a fever but the magic pipe forces her from her bed across the fields and she rushes into his arms. There is a charming love passage and then comes the day's work, she dies. The Old One tells Jolan how always happens when he interferes with Fate.

The opera will be followed by a performance of Cavalleria Rusticana with Marie Gay as Santuzza and Constantino as Turridu.

JURIST BLAMES HIGH PRICES FOR MOST DIVORCES

High prices, coupled with small incomes, resulting in an intense struggle to keep up appearances and gratify social ambitions, are responsible for the wrecking of a large number of homes.

Perhaps if we adopted the prudential marriage system of Europe we should be better off. Courtship in America is often a mere social masquerade.

Lovers never see each other except when at their best, and consequently the young woman marries a hero and the young man an angel, only to be disillusioned shortly after the wedding day.

Judge W. B. Neff of Cleveland, who has granted 428 separations in the past year.

GETS HER CHILD BY STRATEGY

NEWBURYPORT, Jan. 6.—Denied possessing of her five-year-old daughter by a family with whom she placed the child four years ago, Mrs. Mary Murphy of Frost Illinois, has secured the girl by using a bit of strategy.

The family that had the child is that of Mrs. Murphy's sister, Mrs. J. Alfred Lawrence. A few days ago Mrs. Murphy asked for the return of her daughter. The Lawrence family had formed a strong attachment for the child and objected. Finally the sisters went to a lawyer who drew up an agreement whereby the mother was to have the child after paying the board for four years.

Mrs. Murphy consulted another lawyer and learning that the agreement was not worth the paper it was written on presented upon her brother, Thomas Burke, to go to the Lawrence home and get the child into the street. He gave the girl five cents to go to a drug store and buy candy and the child ran into its mother's arms on the way.

WHEELOCK, YEAR IN BUTTE, FLEES

BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 6.—Oscar M. Wheelock, ex-auditor of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company of Boston, and said by the Butte police to be wanted on charge of embezzlement of $6,200, has for some time been cashier of the National Packing Company in Butte, under the name of Rodney H. Merrick.

"His identity has been known to the police for some time. On Sunday, after bidding his young wife goodby, Wheelock disappeared and it has developed that he is short in his accounts with the packing company. An auditor of a surety company is engaged in checking up his books.

The name of Rodney H. Merrick is that of a friend of Wheelock in Boston, and it is claimed that he used that name and Merrick's good standing to procure a bond from a surety company.

Before the alleged embezzlement in the East, about a year ago, Wheelock married Miss Mallen in Boston, a cousin by marriage of the Mayor of Butte. Mrs. Wheelock informed her husband's employer of his disappearance, but says she does not know where he has gone.

A few weeks ago Wheelock shot himself, accidentally as it was then reported, but the police now suspect that it was an attempt at suicide, following a discovery that his identity was known to them.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise all readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes — fifty cents and one dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention the Boston Daily American.

DANCER IS TRUE TO KING MANUEL

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Mlle. Gaby Deslys, the dainty French dancer, has returned to Paris after a three weeks' visit to England, during which she was constantly in the company of former King Manuel of Portugal, the young monarch whose downfall was attributed in part to his devotion to her.

The dancer came to London ostensibly to undergo treatment for a throat affection, and the length of her stay was publicly attributed to the fact that the first operation had not been entirely successful. A second operation, so it was said, was successful and it was during the period of convalescence that she found the devotion of her royal admirer so constant as he declared it would be when she heard of his downfall.

In truth the affection of Mlle. Deslys' throat had little to do with her visit to England at this time, which really was a visit to Manuel, who is in exile here, as a guest of another pretender to a throne, the Duke of Orleans.

Renew Vows of Love.

King Manuel could not go to Paris, as he did when he was King, to spend a few hours with the fair dancer, nor could he summon her to his capital, as she shortly before the revolution in Portugal. But he could and did pay the fare to pay a visit to London, where they could meet again and renew the vows of love which won the dancer the title of "uncrowned Queen" of Portugal, of which she boasted after Manuel had practically been kicked from his throne by her little slipper.

Gaby came and drove to a quiet hotel in the vicinity of Piccadilly, where a suite had been engaged for her. She did not use the public name for fear of detection, and had her meals sent to her suite.

These attentions were made by Manuel who knew his charmer's love for the limelight, and asked that she live in retired fashion during her visit to London.

Met in Secrecy.

The week prior to Christmas was spent by Manuel in London to do his shopping. He made his headquarters at Claridge's. His presence was then made the occasion for a gathering of well known Portuguese royalists. As soon as the reception to Manuel in the first day of his visit was over, he drove over to see Gaby Deslys and spent the remainder of the day in her company.

The feature of the visit of the deposed King and the French dancer to London has been the great care exercised that their meetings should not become publicly known. No public places of amusement were visited by them. They frequently dined and supped in several fashionable hotels and restaurants, but never in the public dining rooms. A private dining room was always engaged in advance for their use. When Manuel returned to Wood Norton, Mlle. Deslys went to Evesham for a short stay. There the visits of Manuel continued. He would walk over from Wood Norton every day and remain in her company for several hours.

Money for Manuel.

With the departure of the dancer comes the news from Lisbon that the British government has intervened successfully with Portugal on behalf of the despondent Manuel. Gaby said that she would support her king if necessary, but this contingency seems to have been removed.

Representations from the foreign office at London, practically at the same time Manuel was entertaining the dancer, set forth that the exiled King was possessed of means insufficient for his personal needs. Accordingly the Portuguese government has decided to permit him to receive the revenues derived from the properties of the house of Braganza pending a final settlement between the State and the royal family. Manuel and his mother, Queen Amelie, after changing their minds several times, have signed a lease for a house at Abercorn, Richmond Hill, and will take possession, with a fairly large suite, and gold "court."

MOTHER SAVED FOR CHILDREN

"I firmly believe Father John's Medicine saved my wife from an early grave and restored her to her young family," says Mr. Cornelius O'Brien of 189 Charles St., East Cambridge, Mass. "After suffering from nervous prostration, she began taking Father John's Medicine and at once began to improve. She has now completely regained her health."

Mr. O'Brien was recently cured of a serious cold by this old remedy. He gives Father John's Medicine to the babies to keep them fat and rosy, and says: "No family should be without a bottle of Father John's Medicine."

GABY DESLYS, THE DANCER, WHO COST MANUEL HIS THRONE

MISS FILKINS TO WED VIOLINIST

Miss Lydia Filkins, daughter of a Boston theatrical manager, and an adopted daughter of Rear Admiral Adolph Marix, United States Navy, retired, is to wed Nikola Sokoloff, a Russian violinist, who formerly played with the Boston Symphony orchestra. The two obtained a marriage license in New York.

Evidently Rear Admiral Marix was not aware of their intention for he expressed surprise when told that they had a license. Sokoloff, who made his debut in New York on December 15, is twenty-five years old and has lived in this country since he was fourteen. The two have known each other ten years and it is understood that wealthy relatives of Miss Filkins do not object to their friendship they are opposed to a marriage.

BOY IN POND SAVED BY HUMAN CHAIN

WORCESTER, Jan. 6.—Joseph Lafbanie, fourteen, of Leicester was saved from drowning in Smith Pond when his school mates, Joseph Perry and George Duprey, formed a chain and by lying flat on the ice managed to pull the lad out of the water, his home.

SAILORS IN RIOT ATTACK POLICE

Four of a party of six sailors who, it is alleged, gave Patrolman William S. McDonald of the Jay street station a severe beating in Court street, West End, were arraigned in the municipal court to-day, charged with assault and battery upon an officer. They gave their names as Arthur Bacon, John J. Cushing, William Sefferi and Bert Hilliard and said they came from New York city.

Patrolman McDonald presented a battered appearance when his name into court to testify against the four sailors. His face was cut in many places, one eye blackened and his scalp was severely lacerated. If it had not been for the timely arrival of Patrolmen Fox and Mahoney of the Court Square station, who came to his assistance, McDonald might have been kicked to death by the mob which surrounded him on all sides at the time of the assault.

Sailor Shouted for Help.

The alleged attack was made upon McDonald following his attempt to place one of the party of six sailors under arrest in Court street, near Stoddard street, into last night. The sailors, the police say, had been drinking and were in an ugly mood. One of the number was particularly belligerous, and McDonald asked them to move on. The did not seem inclined to obey and McDonald seized Bacon by the arm and started to walk him toward the police box.

The sailor under arrest immediately began to make resistance and shouted to his companions to help him. McDonald was struck a blow from behind which sent him reeling against the wall of a building, but he managed to retain grasp on Bacon, and at the same time struck out with his club with his free hand. He did not have time to draw the club, however, before a stunning blow from behind and fell to the sidewalk.

A scene of wild disorder followed. Several of the sailors jumped on McDonald who was still clinging to Bacon, and they rained kicks and blows upon his head and body. He managed to regain his feet, however, and dragging Bacon, who was frantically trying to wrench himself free after him, fought his way through the crowd to Howard street.

Spectators Didn't Interfere.

By this time a crowd of several hundred persons had collected in Court square to watch the uneven combat, yet none of the spectators dared to interfere. Patrolman Fox and Mahoney, who were standing in Scollay square, were attracted to the scene by the yells of the crowd. With drawn clubs the two officers fought their way through to McDonald's side and they succeeded in capturing two of his alleged assailants.

Almost at the same time the patrol wagon of the Joy street station arrived and Sergeants Dunn and Sullivan and six policemen. They immediately dispersed the crowd surrounding the other three policemen and also managed to capture the other sailor who, it is alleged, took part in the attack upon McDonald.

These policemen were sent to the scene in answer to a call from the police box in the Joy street station by somebody who feared McDonald would be kicked to death by the infuriated men. Two others who were implicated in the assault mingled in the crowd and made their escape.

The four prisoners were taken to the Joy street station, where they were booked with assault and battery upon an officer. Bacon was also charged with drunkenness. McDonald was badly used up. His injuries were treated by a physician at the station house, after which he was sent to his home.

MOTOR SHOWS DRAW NEAR END

By J. C. KERRIGON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—This, the second day of the Independent and Importers' Motor Shows, brought an increased influx of visitors from all sections of the country. They had delayed their arrival in New York until the latter part of the week so that they might see the final of these shows and the birth of the Madison Square Garden exhibit, which is to be inaugurated to-morrow evening.

Both the shows, the one in the Crystal Palace and the other in the Astor Hall Room, were more than well patronized. The dealers early this morning stated that there had been more business so far today than in any other one day since the exhibits opened. The show in the Palace seems to grow in importance every day. There is always something that attracts attention. Something which seems to have been overlooked in the previous days' visits.

The aeroplane display in the upper tier of the Palace is admittedly the greatest display of its kind that has ever been made in this country, including, as it does, almost every known form of aerial machine. In the Burgess Company, one finds "Bill" Hillard, an old Bostonian, who still holds the Mount Washington hill climbing record, and who in the past has done some particularly fast work on the road and track. Hillard says that his latest creation will make a decidedly speedy flyer, and he anticipates making a flight for speed and a flight for endurance at the Squantum aviation field.

Among the very busy men at the show, is Chester A. Campbell, the manager of the Boston Motor Show, and the Boston Motor Boat Show. Mr. Campbell spent yesterday and to-day in conferring with the different exhibitors and in explaining to them how badly handicapped he is for space in the Boston exhibit of March next.

Owing to a ruling made by the License Association, none of the cars displayed in the Palace Show can be shown in either the Boston Show of next week, or the Chicago Show later in the month. They can, however, be shown in Boston in March next, as that is one of the few open shows of any consequence to be held in this country, and no car of any importance will be lacking at the exhibit.

One fine line of cars that attract considerable attention, is that of the Lexington, which is handled in Boston by the Davis Automobile Sales Company. This car is shown in no less than five models, ranging in price from $1,650 to $2,500. The appearance of the car gives one an idea of the efficiency, dependability, durability, flexibility, and all the other much talked of highly desirable qualities to be found in a motor car. It is evident that in the construction of these cars the utmost pains have been taken, not only as regards workmanship, but likewise as to material, and they compare most favorably with anything that is displayed in the show.

The opening of the Garden Show to-morrow evening, promises to be a social event of the first order, not judging from precedent alone, but from the fact that rooms have been engaged at the Waldorf-Astoria, the Knickerbocker, the new Ritz and the St. Regis, by members of country club and other sets, who have planned to come into the city for the opening and the first few days of the Garden Show.

The Motor Car Show is to be the headquarters for several parties from other cities for the show's opening. The Philadelphia contingent is to number more than fifty, and they are not by any means persons who are financially interested in automobile making. They are auto enthusiasts. Colonel John Jacob Astor, whose private garage still holds the record as to size in this country, had planned to leave the city next week, but has changed his plans so that he may have the opportunity of looking over the new models. His son, Vincent, is as great an auto enthusiast as his father.

YALE EDITORIAL RAPS BASEBALL

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 6.—The Yale Alumni Weekly to-day publishes an editorial which severely criticizes the professional methods in Yale baseball. The editorial in part is as follows:

"We believe that we are voicing the opinion of most of the graduates when we say that professional methods on the college baseball field are ungrateful to the alumni's taste. We have witnessed—or rather heard—baseball games at Yale field now and then which caused us to rub our eyes and wonder whether we were not present at a championship game between a boiler factory and a steam calliope.

"Talking on the field and playing the game from the bench are things which Yale baseball formerly could do without, and which we can enthusiastically dispense with in the future. Ball players ought to know baseball and the ins and outs of the game. But we do not expect college ball players to play like professionals.

"It is the spirit of the college players themselves that we want to see front again, minus the attendant circumstances which now and then of late years have made Yale field sound like a Tower of Babel."

FELLSWAY BEAT LYNN BOWLERS

By ED. COGSWELL.

Judging from the way the professionals handled the amateurs in the Boston pins vs. candlepin match at the Colonial Club, it must seem that the pros have something on the trophy playing chaps.

Each took three strings at both style of pins, but when the counting was completed it was found that the amateurs had nothing coming to them in the way of points.

The unusually large crowd of spectators, which completely filled all of the space allotted, rather anticipated the bowlers would piece scores on the board very close to world's records, if, indeed, not accomplishing the feat, but in this they were disappointed, though the contest was interesting enough to keep all on edge till the totals were figured.

Another match that attracted the whole attention of Somerville and half of Lynn was between the Fellsway Driving Club bowlers and J. R. Blood Company, pin smashers at the Boylston alleys, the return match, as the Fellsways had been defeated four straight points in the first encounter in Lynn.

Well, Fellsways, headed by Jack Morrison, returned the compliment in swiping their visitors off the board, and really did some clever bowling in doing the trick. The deciding match will be played at the Boylston alleys, making a cost naming the place, on January 15. Following is the score:

RUSTLERS BUY THIRD BASEMAN

Arthur Butler, who was with the Fall River team last season, has been added to the staff of William Hepburn Russell's team, the Rustlers.

The local club gave Fall River George Walsh, an infielder formerly with New Bedford, and $500 for Butler, who is a promising third baseman.

Butler was watched by Fred Tenney when the latter played in the New England League last Summer and made a great impression. President O'Brien of the Fall River club came to Boston to put through the deal and was loud in his praises of the youngster. He said he hated to lose him, but the fact that he was a Fall River boy made it imperative that he gave him the chance to make good with a big club.

The National Leaguers also received the signed contract from Patsy Flaherty. William F. Parsons, the pitcher, also signed up and his papers were received. Vice President Page said that the purchase of Butler was only the beginning of the campaign toward strengthening the club. Tenney will give the youngster a thorough tryout, and it is expected that he will be able to fit in at the hard corner in an acceptable manner.

YALE PAPER FLAYS PROFESSIONALISM IN COLLEGE BALL

M'FARLAND TO NAME REFEREE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 6.—Packey McFarland denied that he has accepted an offer to box Freddie Welsh in England, on February 9. McFarland is ready to go abroad and meet the English champion, provided the bout is arranged to take place during the week of February 19, and Eugene Corri is named as referee. McFarland says he was robbed of a decision last year, and unless he is permitted to name the referee he will not sign.

DOVER TO GET CIRCUIT MEET

The general opinion among Boston horsemen is that the famous old Granite State Park track at Dover will secure the grand circuit dates for the week succeeding the Fort Erie meet and immediately preceding Readville.

While it has been said that the Grand Circuit stewards will consider the claims of both Poughkeepsie and Empire City for one of the week's date preceding Readville, at their meeting at Buffalo on Tuesday, the announcement that Walter Cox is behind the Dover meeting will result in the securing of the dates for that track.

NAME HARVARD CAPTAIN SOON

As the days drag slowly by and no football captain is elected at Harvard, followers of the Crimson eleven are beginning to wonder whether there will ever be another football leader for the Red. It seems assured now, however, that the election will be held the middle of next week and the minds of football fans put at ease once more.

The trouble in the first place was that Coach Haughton went to Europe immediately after the Yale game, and Captain Withington did not care to hold an election until the coach returned.

SPORTS of all SORTS

PRESIDENT TAYLOR AND MANAGER Donovan of the Red Sox made a social call on President Russell and Manager Tenney of the rival Rustlers the other afternoon. The visit was unexpected, but nevertheless pleasant.

"Peter, put the kettle on, and trot the crackers out, and pass the smokes and mark some jokes, while Taylor is about," said Tenney, told the contracts up and put them under lock. While John's about there is no doubt, it isn't safe to talk business. It's a wise old duck, and Donovan's the same—no boob. They would in any pilot, nor bookmaker by his game. Let us discuss baseball in our words, and let no info out. Well just have tea and hash—only when Taylor is absent.

ENVOI.

Some people call on business. Some call on pleasure bent.
But the man who can dope out the cause
for John's call
Is a wonderful brainy gent!

MUCH OF THE FUTURE OF WINTER racing at this country depends upon the final outcome of the Jockey Club's fight against betting. If the anti-wagering forces will be barred to the running horse for all time, the game must surely die, people is. Is a wager by word of mouth a felony? Can a conviction be secured where a bet is not in turn duly registered. It is a vital question for the followers and the outcome is awaited with much interest.

YOUNG GRIFFO, THE OLD AUSTRALIAN lover, who has spent fully as much time in the Workhouse at Chicago as out of it in the last few years, was invited to dine in a Bowery restaurant a few nights ago. Not being able to read the bill of fare, Griffo left the selection of food to the willing and comfortable waiter. The smoking salad was placed before him and Griffo sprinkled the dish liberally from a powdered sugar shaker. His friends thought it must be an Australian custom until Griffo tasted the food. Making a wry face, he muttered:

"Gee! Sweet salt."

THESE "WHITE MEN'S HOPES" ARE certainly coming thick and fast. Here's a new one and all the way from across the pond—only a year old, a butcher boy, sure to wipe up the face of the earth with anything that stands in slow leather.

BUT he doesn't know the first thing about the fighting game.

ZBYSZKO'S AMERICAN GUIDE, J. H. Herman, appears also to have struck an evil star for 1911. He has been dirtied thoroughly in the Pittsburg professionally fouling the atmosphere of late, daring any and all to grapple with the big Pole, but none seems to care for the game. And the 200-pound Zbyszko is quite a heavy cross to the meantime Herman's money is drawn up on interest, and the rent man is as regular as the sun.

MIKE RYAN DOESN'T INTEND TO let an American with a name that sounds like Hans Heimer take all the foreign honors in the merry Marathoning line. Michaud is going to England for the big annual event ending at Shepherd's Bush, which lifted Johnny Hayes from behind a ribbon counter a couple of years ago.

THE BEST OF GOOD WISHES WILL be extended to William H. Minton of Utility, who will represent Boston at the coming trotting conference at Buffalo, and who will be the head of the new syndicate acquiring the famous Readville race track.

GEORGE ALGER WINS BOUT WITH AHEARN

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 6.—George Alger of Cambridge played havoc with Young Ahearn of New York, who came here as a much-heralded boxer. Alger shot a wicked left to the jaw and sent Ahearn to dreamville in the fifth. With the exception of the second round, when honors were about even, Alger had his opponent at his mercy, hitting him at will.

LET RULES STAY ADVISES COACH

That the best way to improve football is to let the rules alone for several years, is the opinion of Edward N. Robinson, head coach of the great Brown eleven of last Fall. Robinson made this statement at the banquet tendered the championship Worden High School eleven. Over 400, including one of the greatest collection of football players and coaches ever gathered together paid honor to the team.

"The best way to help the game is to promote a clean spirit among the players," said Robinson. "Interest more boys to play the game, and keep them alive to the fact that the sport can be played without any attempt to evade the rules. The game this past year has improved wonderfully. The manly spirit in which the players contested, and team work, has improved the game more than the rules. By team work I mean, such as was shown by Mallon High players this past season, and such a continuance is sure to bring the game to the front.

"The speakers and their topics, "Ideals in Football," Walter Camp; "College Athletics from the Standpoint of a Career," Professor Arthur Leland Glaze, the old Dartmouth athlete; "The Spirit That Wins in Football," Fred Murphy; "Team Play, Game and Heart," Howard Hoppe Jr.; E. N. Robinson; "Is the Present Game the Best Possible For the High School," Charles F. Cuddy; "Brain Force or Brains in Football," W. E. Sperkling; "The Place of Football in the Activities of the High School," Professor Lee; "The Aims of Our High School Athletics," Joseph Wiggin.

TUFTS FIVE IS HARD HIT BY FACULTY BAN

The Tufts five, already crippled by the illness of Captain Dickinson, has suffered another setback, this time by reason of the faculty probation rule. Huntington and Filmore, the freshman who has starred at forward, are both out of the game for at least two months by reason of scholarship deficiencies. Hooper and Merrill are possible substitutes in the game with Boston College to-night, but the lineup has not been decided.

The home game with St. Lawrence University, which was scheduled for next Monday, has been cancelled, and a game with an almost team will be played on January 23.

BAN SEES NO HITCH IN SALE OF BROWNS

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—No hitch in the sale of the St. Louis American League team has come to the notice of President Ban B. Johnson, according to a statement made by that official.

"The new owners have the money to pay for the Browns and always have had," said Johnson. "If they hadn't had it the American League investigating committee would have found it out.

"While the transfer has not been completed as yet, it will be. There are a few details to be ironed out, that is arranged, but as far as a 'hitch' is concerned, that does not exist, ridiculous."

McGOVERN-CLARKE BOUT CALLED DRAW

LAWRENCE, Jan. 6.—In the main event at the Unity Creek Club Billy Clarke of Lawrence boxed Young Medgovern of Woburn in a twelve-round go. The bout was called a draw, but Clarke had a big edge all the way.

Joe White of Boston beat Kid Delmont of Lawrence in six rounds; Kid Burke of Lawrence beat Young Seddio of Lawrence in six rounds, and Tommy Carson and Kid Brady, both of Lawrence, went six rounds to a draw.

MACK TELLS HOW TEAMS GO STALE

Connie Mack is still after pitchers. He now has an idea that he is going to strengthen his pitching staff, and tells how he is going about to do it.

Even with Bender, Plank, Krause, Coombs, and Jack Coombs, and a bunch of world beaters besides, Connie isn't satisfied. He's what he says about it:

"It's the history of all championship teams that they go to the bad all at once.

"Usually the members of a championship team are about the same age. When they reach the top all are traveling at their highest rate of speed. Usually the manager is afraid to break up his team. He can see that one star is slipping, but instead of throwing him out and substituting another he clings to the old star. For there is always the chance that he will come back. He is afraid to take a chance, you see.

"Gradually all the men begin to slow up. Still the manager is afraid, for he reasons that the men were once stars and that they surely will come back. The first thing you know some other team has forged to the front, and it is necessary for the manager of the former champions to begin at the bottom and build up.

"I want to keep away from that. And the only way of doing it is to keep breaking in your men. Just as soon as you discover that one of your old men is slipping put in a youngster. Keep shifting your holes. Then you will have a team that will never go down all at once."

WOLGAST WILL FIGHT FEB. 22

By TAD.

Ta-ra-ra, ta-ra-ra, rah, rah! Listen, my children, and you shall hear of the midnight wire of Cherokee Tom. Woe is Cherokee Tom. Cherokee Tom, my children, is the guardian of that Dresden China doll, dubbed by R. Nelson as Adolphus, the clown.

It seems that Cherokee Tom took his little doll to the Arlet yesterday, and the medico, after taking a slant at the injured wing of Adolphus, decided that the dollie might go forth once again and mingle with the rough boys in the street.

Then sends on the following wire:

TAD: After consultation held in rooms of Dr. McQuillen this afternoon, the physicians agree that Wolgast can box February 22; ready to listen to proposition for that date.

TOM JONES.

Mr. R. Nelson, who was once leading lady in the Lightweight Burlesquers, but who is at present doing specialty duty, in the back line, was wild with joy when shown the above wire.

"Just say for me," piped the Mayor of Hegwhich, "that if the 'cheese' really means business that I'll be on hand at any time with money for forfeits.

"Wolgast can write the articles himself on my light with him. I am the man he won the title from and am the first he should fight. I will bet him winner take all. If he likes, forty-five rounds or to a finish, and he can make the side bet as big as he likes.

"Let him write the articles himself. I don't want a cent if I lose. He can put the money any way at all, as I said. I'll go as far as he will in that matter. I'm in the game, and he is anyway you take the thing."

DOCTOR PURCHASES GRAND RAPIDS CLUB

SOUTH BEND, Jan. 6.—Dr. Harley P. Parker of Chicago has purchased the Grand Rapids Central league franchise from Bert Ayais of this city. The price was not announced. Dr. Parker did not take over any of the players on the reserve list of the Rapids club. Dr. Parker was once a Chicago National league director. His former home was in Grand Rapids.

MOGULS PUT A SPY ON MINOR LEAGUES

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—A story was circulated in baseball circles here to-day to the effect that Joe Flanner, a member of the executive family of President Ban B. Johnson of the American League, will probably be appointed a special representative of the National Commission. According to the story the Commission needs a man to represent it at all the minor league gatherings. One of the duties of the representative is to see that there is "no covering up" of players and that sales and drafts are made by magnates who really intend to give the new men a chance in the game. The case where the Boston Red Sox seeking to draft Cleveland draft him and farm him out to Sacramento, is in point.

A. HENRY HIGGINSON, HUNT CLUB DIRECTOR

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—At the annual meeting of the United Hunts Racing Association, the following officers were elected:

Perry Belmont, president; H. S. Page, first vice-president; Henry W. Bull, second vice-president; W. R. Grace, treasurer; H. A. Buck, secretary. J. Searle Bridge, Jr., W. R. Grace, A. Henry Higginson and H. S. Page were elected directors of the association.

(Our Regular Semi-Annual Event)

Special Notice

A malicious report has been circulated to the effect that the models on the forms in our windows are specially built and too perfect to be our regular stock. We beg to assure the men of Boston that this rumor is absolutely without foundation, and that we stand ready to take any garment out of our windows for the asking, and sell it at marked price. This is not a new rule—it is one of the rocks upon which our business is built.

WE have no hard luck story to tell. We're having the greatest season we've ever known in 32 years. GEORGES MODEL CLOTHES are making a bigger hit every day in the five great cities of the East, making such a hit that we'd like to keep right on at regular prices.

3—We have found that people who have clothes made here between seasons become regular patrons of our shop.

4—We buy our woolens as low as anybody on earth. Our buyer has been identified with woolens ever since he was eleven years of age.

5—Our wage scale is adjusted to the entire year—not like other tailor shops, that allow their employes to remain idle several months each year.

Foolishness That Is Wisdom

By DOROTHY DIX

A WOMAN was telling me the story of her life the other day. It was one of those epics of unconscious feminine heroism and loyalty that brings an ache into your throat to listen to, yet she told it in a smiling face, and ended by saying wistfully

"My family and friends say that I am a little fool. What do you think?"

She was a young woman, only twenty-four, educated and accomplished. She had been married five years and had three children. Her maternity had left her little more or less of an invalid. Nevertheless in spite of this, she did all of her own housework and sewing, and found time to keep up her music and reading.

"My friends and relatives insist that I am an idiot to work the way I do," she had said. "They tell me that my husband does not appreciate me, and that he has affinities by the score. Now, my husband is a handsome man, and one of the kind of men that all women admire, but I have never yet looked at the situation through green eyes, and as long as I am happy, why need my friends bother me with their suspicions?

Rebuffing the Informers

"Of course, they tell me that it is for my own good that they come to me with their stories of my husband's flirtations, and when I intimate that they would better occupy their minds with their own affairs, they are hurt.

I am happy. I take pride in my home and my home. I love my husband dearly, and in spite of everything I am sure that he loves me, that I really have the first place in his heart. He takes me out often. He is kind and gentle to me, and we get very congenial. We have the same tastes, and never quarrel, and what I want to know is, am I really a fool, as my friends say, in accepting the situation as it is, enjoying my husband's many charming qualities and shutting my eyes to his weaknesses, or would I get more sensibly on the jealous of the attentions that he shows other women, assert my dignity as a wife, and even perhaps go so far as to leave him?"

"My dear," I said to this woman, "in my humble opinion, when it comes to wisdom you are a Solomon in petticoats, and I am authoritative over advice over going and get women on the bench. I am going to nominate you for Judge of the Domestic Relations Court, and we hope that you would be able to hand out to Jezlons wives the same brand of good, hard, common sense that you use yourself.

Why Divorce Is Common

"Believe me, any woman who refuses to see green eyes over every shirt that crosses her husband's path; who deliberately beholds his weaknesses and excuses them, and who is just enough to strike an average between his good qualities and his bad ones, has got all of the seven Wise Women hailed to the post when it comes to gray matter under her puffs. Not many women have this much intelligence, and this is why divorce is so common.

"And take it from me, my dear, that of all the Dead Sea fruit in the world, divorced is that which is most dust and ashes in a woman's teeth. When your heart is torn with jealousy, and you are angry and hurt, and other people are sicking you on and telling you to assert your rights and not to stand for this and that, it seems to you that a legal separation will be the surgeon's knife that will cut out the festering sore and leave you free from pain.

"But divorce works no such miracle. If you love a man a decree of court doesn't dig that love up by its roots. The ache is still there, without the hope that you had, as long as he was bound to you, that some time he would come back to you. In addition you have broken up your home, often you have deprived yourself of a good living and thrown away the consolation that an establishment, a settled place of her own in society, is to every woman.

"And no matter how bitter your family and friends have been against your husband, or how much they have urged you to leave him, the woman who goes back to her old home a divorced woman, especially if she has children, finds her road a thorny one to travel.

Matrimony No Picnic

"Father and mother, and sisters and brothers may be overflowing with sympathy for poor Mary and her unfortunate little children—but poor Mary and her unfortunate little children crowd the house, and have to be supported, or helped out, and—of course—Mary, we are all selfish, even the best of us, and when we get our daughters married we expect them to stay married!

"And if they are wise they do. Matrimony is no picnic, heaven knows, but generally speaking it is a man affair compared to being a divorce. Of course money, where there is lots of it, gilds the divorce situation as it does every other situation in life, but even although you have a big bankroll

"Leaving the practical aspect of the case aside, however, what greater evidence of wisdom is it possible for a woman to show or to be afraid to a philosophy that enables her to pluck the sweet and let the bitter go in matrimony, and to find happiness in her home, in her children, and in the charming side of himself that her husband shows her, instead of torturing herself with hopeless jealousy and making her home a place of arrivings and outcastings and reproaches?

Life Is Compromise

"At its best, all life is a series of compromises. None of us get just what we want, in just the way we want it, and if you have got a husband who is companionable, and kind, and generous, make the most of that, and cultivate optimism to feed the roses. Keep your home sweet. Keep a father in a father's place for your children, and tell your meddlesome friends to mind their own business. It is just enough to give you wise to the things you don't want to know about your husband, to keep their noses out of your domestic pie.

"Upon my word, do you think I am a little fool?" asked the woman again.

"If you are foolish," I replied, "God send more women that have the same kind of foolishness. It is a foolishness that surpasses all wisdom."

A Great Emotional Story of Mother Love, Novelized by J. W. McConaughy by Special Arrangement With Henry W. Savage from Alexandre Bisson's Powerful Drama. Copyright, 1910, by the H. K. Fly Co

Synopsis

LOUIS FLORIOT, deputy attorney of Paris, for two years has striven to crush the passion of his love for his wife. Two years ago he had fled from his temptation and friend whom he had trusted.

He had only his little son Raymond to live for. The original illness of the infant had nearly wrecked Floriot himself. The crisis had been successfully passed, however.

During the infant's illness Floriot had been greatly comforted by Mme. Varenne, a neighbor, and by the valet of the [illegible] Floriot [illegible] death of his wife all [illegible] crush out her memory.

While [illegible] and Flor[illegible] in the child's sickness [illegible] shocks at the door and [illegible] mits Jacques [illegible] The [illegible] had [illegible] illness and his [illegible] she has seen him.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS AND ARMS

A FAMOUS BEAUTY GIVES HER SECRET TO THE WORLD.

Free Prescription You Can Prepare at Your Own Home.

Many women take perfect care of their face and clothes, yet neglect their hands. Rough, red hands are almost as unattractive as ill-kept teeth.

It is a simple, easy matter to keep your hands smooth and beautiful. The following prescription, which you can compound at your own home, is famous for the marvelous instantaneous result it gives.

Get from Hiker-Jayne Drug Stores one ounce of Kalux Compound. Put it in a two-ounce bottle, add quarter of an ounce of witch hazel, fill with water and shake well.

You will be surprised at the result when applied to your hands, arms or neck. Blemishes of every kind disappear as if by magic. Freckles, tan, rough skin, coarse pores yield instantly to this application. This is the private prescription of a famous Parisian beauty.

[illegible] for her is turned to worry and to help you [illegible] to [illegible] Ladies!

Jacques realizes she is losing her [illegible] It also spurs herself to a [illegible] effort.

M. Noel, who had disappeared and was reported to have killed himself, is found alive and tells Chenevard and Florist the cause. He had lived a worthless life and often [illegible] He wanted to forget. When he came to Jacque in a disgraceful state he greatly wrought up and urges pursuit.

CHAPTER V.

Continuing for the Prosecution.

WHEN Floriot swore that the story of the wreck of his life should never be told until Judgment Day he did not know that the only man to whom he could possibly be poured out his grief was alive, and he could not foresee that one day he would be so near to [illegible] to [illegible] of confession. It is rarely that [illegible] strong, sensitive men can put into words such a story as that which Floriot was about to confide to his friend. That is why they call upon the gunsmith instead of the Divorce Court for aid in cleansing their honor.

But Chenevard, friend of counsel and comfort was strong upon him. Noel's refusal to agree with him, coming with the recollection of the [illegible] had [illegible] leading wife, shook his faith in himself. He was willing to live again the terrible drama of his life rather than [illegible] in his bitter resolution and make a sure alibi of Noel.

The latter, when he was invited to sit down and listen, looked uneasily at his friend a drawn face for a moment and then slowly settled back in his big chair, shading his eyes with his hands, until the others could [illegible] tell whether they were open or closed. Floriot did not sit. He paced slowly up and down the room in silence for a few [illegible] minutes, and then he began

"Noel, you [illegible] he said, in low, steady tones, "there is no man or woman alive excepting you, to whom I could tell what I am going to say. I have no need of it in the world but you and my boy [illegible] Noel, by the bond of your—[illegible] he added bitterly

"But you were about to defend her just now without question. You said that she was [illegible] to be pitied. I know why—you knew her before she was married. That was [illegible] years ago. She developed [illegible] there was the bitter note again

"And she developed into a woman that you never knew! And you [illegible] to live in the same body with her. She had the happiness of [illegible] and the appliances of two—and possibly three—persons in her household. For the sake of a [illegible] intrigue which she now sees could [illegible] to nothing but [illegible] she sacrificed her boy and me. And there is no explanation of it in the thought that he was cast out in the ruins of the home that she pulled down!"

"The Boy Must Be Protected"

Noel stirred in his chair but did not speak. In spite of his [illegible] and love of light conversation he had been blessed with the divine power of silence when [illegible]

He paused in his walk and wiped his forehead with his handkerchief. Noel watched him silently.

"But I am not weak enough nor cowardly enough to let that weigh with me. The boy must be protected. He must never know that she is alive—never know what she did." He seemed to be talking more to himself than to his friend. "If she were to try again to [illegible] he would [illegible] she would stay!" He clenched his fists and cried bitterly

"The man who said that a woman who is untrue to one man would be untrue to two or a dozen knew her and her kind!"

Noel was motionless; and, after a few more turns up and down the room, Floriot went on.

I know that she must have loved me or why should she have married me? If she wanted position she could have married men farther up in the world than I was than I am now. If she wanted money she could have married a richer man—much richer than I am now. She loved me—for a year. You and she was not naturally wicked. She was perhaps—[illegible] a passion that burns itself out in a year and she will probably have a dozen lovers before she dies!"

He was a restless movement in the chair that Floriot did not see.

Noel, you can't realize the happiness of my life until I—learned that it was a fool! For the first year I prided myself on everything but [illegible] bitterly happy as I was. It didn't seem possible that I could ever be more completely filled with joy and contentment than our boy was born, and after that it seemed as if [illegible] had been [illegible] by [illegible] Anguish choked him and he was silent until he recovered control.

"Before that time I thought that I had fully [illegible] my career. I was [illegible] and then it was doubled. I was in my office early and late every moment that I could tear myself away from my home [illegible] I married a [illegible] woman than mine. And she

In our last pictures, as you no doubt remember, traffic on the jungle line was tied up by a couple of jungle pythons constrictorea grabbing the giraffe by the neck. Desmond wouldn't have minded the delay so much if Claude and the cannibals hadn't been after him. To avoid them, the villain is obliged to hoof it.

No, this is not a portrait of Desperate Desmond disguised in a long suit of whiskers. It is merely a bunch of jungle grass surrounded by the hat the villain wore, with his shoes placed underneath to give the dummy an air of verisimilitude. The idea being to deceive his pursuers while he makes his getaway.

Of course, Claude falls for the ruse. He always does. Sometimes we are tempted to call Claude dumb, but that isn't really what's the matter with him. He's such an honest, upright chap himself that he is loath to suspect duplicity in his fellowmen. Heroes have to be like that, or there wouldn't be any drama.

Permit us to translate what the Cannibal King is saying, as you are perhaps not familiar with his vernacular. He says: "Pipe the shore, it's a cinch they're full of beef, and the feet must belong to somebody. I'll bet it's Desmond I saw hiking through the jungle a minute ago. He'll do for soup meat, anyhow."

Claude and the cannibal king both make a dive for Desmond at the same time. Much to their surprise, he isn't there, but the King doesn't care. All white men look alike to him, except that some are fatter than others. Claude will of course realize that Desmond would. But we hope no such fate is in store for him.

In the meantime Desmond is creeping through the jungle with Rosamond at his side. He figures that he'll have plenty of time to escape while Claude and the King are enjoying each other's company. He doesn't see that creeping lion in the foreground, but he will in tomorrow's pictures. And the lion will see him, too.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO NOT ASK HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady twenty-seven years of age, and have been keeping company with a young man one year my junior for the past four years. He never seems to pay a great deal of attention, but at the same time has never asked me to marry him. There is also another gentleman who wishes to take me out, but I do not love him. Do you think that the former one is in love with me, and would you advise me to ask him to marry me? He seems to be rather shy. Would you advise me to go out with the latter to make him jealous?

DOUBTFUL.

DO not think of asking him to marry you. Possibly your going out with the other man may spur his courage a bit; you might try.

SEND THE RING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you kindly tell me if it is wrong to send an engagement ring to a young lady or not. Of course I know it is more suitable to place it upon her finger myself, but as the young lady is quite a distance from here I cannot very well do it. I have known her for about nine years, and we had made up our minds to marry several years ago. As yet I have never given her a ring, but we are planning for her to come here in a few months. My mother met the young lady a few months ago, and thinks the world of her. I would like you to tell me if it would be best to wait until she reaches here before giving her the ring, or will it be all right for me to send it to her?

W. B. R.

SEND her the ring by all means. She will be glad to have it and it is most natural that she should. It is nice that your mother likes her so much. I trust you will be very happy.

NOT WITHOUT INTRODUCTION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady, nineteen years old. For the past six months, while on my way to business I have been meeting a very nice young gentleman. He seems rather anxious to meet me, as I am the same to meet him. Could you advise me how I could become acquainted with this young gentleman? I don't know anybody that could introduce us.

R. H.

I WOULD not advise you to strike up an acquaintanceship without being properly introduced. If he is very anxious to meet you he will probably find a way to do so.

WHY NOT?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A gentleman two years my senior has been calling on me twice a week for two years, and we have always been on good terms. Three months ago he left the city, and wrote me to that extent without giving me his address, which put me under the impression that he did not want to hear from me any more, and therefore I have forgotten him entirely. To my surprise I have received a letter from him this week, stating that he is coming back and he would like to see me or hear from me. Now, do you think it is proper for me to answer this letter or to have anything whatever to do with him under these circumstances?

PUZZLED.

I SEE no reason why you should not receive him in a friendly way. Tell him that you will be pleased to have him call on you, but do not set a date; let him do that. Of course, if you do not like him you are in no way obliged to renew the friendship.

VERY SUITABLE AGES.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-eight years of age, earning a fair salary, and am very much in love with the stenographer in the office in which I am employed. Her age is but eighteen and she feels that I am entirely too old for her.

Knowing that I could support her comfortably, I would very much like your advice in the matter.

F. J. M.

YOU are not at all too old for her; in fact, your ages are very suitable. Tell her that many people marry happily when the difference in ages is much greater than in your case.

To-day's Best Story

"YOU charged twice as much for these tomatoes as they do down the street. Why is that?" And the young housewife looked searchingly at the green-grocer with her keen eyes.

The man hesitated and then boldly replied:

"Those are hand-picked tomatoes, madame."

"I beg your pardon," she said meekly. "Give me three pounds, please."

An Ingenuous Method

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"ARE you sure you bought this here, Madam?"

"Why, of course! I got it here just last week."

It was at the toilet goods counter of a big department store. The clerk was examining a bottle of expensive French perfume which a well-dressed woman wished to exchange.

"I am sorry—but I'm afraid I can't exchange it."

"Can't exchange it?" indignantly. "Why, what's the matter? It's never been opened —the seal is unbroken—it's just as I bought it."

"Oh, yes, the seal is all right—I know it hasn't been opened. But you must have made a mistake in the store. This wasn't bought here."

"Wasn't bought here? Why, of course it was bought here! Didn't I tell you I got it here myself last week? Why, right behind you on that shelf are a dozen bottles of the same make!"

"Certainly we carry this perfume, but this bottle didn't come from here. That," turning over the fancy box which held it, "is not our stock mark."

"Why, it isn't marked at all!" excitedly.

"Yes," with a searching look at the woman, "there's a mark here. It has been almost rubbed out—but you can still see it."

"Where?" sharply.

The girl handed her the box. She examined the faint pencilled figures which had not been quite successfully erased.

"Well, I don't know anything about that," haughtily. "But I do know that I bought this here last week. And it's in perfect condition—so I will expect you to exchange it."

"I'm afraid I cannot Madam," the girl replied firmly.

"Then I'll see the floor walker or the head of your department—some one who will! This is an outrage—for you to claim this didn't come from here when I bought it here myself! Who and where is the head of this department?"

"Miss Barton is the buyer," the girl answered quietly, "she is right there at the end of the counter."

The woman rustled up to the end of the counter and indignantly made her complaint.

The buyer listened patiently, examined the bottle and the faint pencil marks on the bottom of the box.

"And yet you advertise," the woman fumed on, "that you will cheerfully exchange or refund money for any article returned in good condition!"

To the Floorwalker

"Certainly," the buyer answered, "we are always willing to exchange or refund money for our own goods—but you can not expect us to do that for goods bought from some other store."

Furious, the woman jerked up the perfume and sulled off in search of the floorwalker, declaring she would report the whole department.

But a few moments she returned with the floorwalker, a mild looking man, to whom she was talking fast and excitedly. Evidently he had not noticed the mark on the bottom of the box and was not quite sure of his ground.

"Er—ah—Miss Barton," addressing the buyer, "this lady would like to return this perfume, and—ah—there seems to be some little trouble about it?"

"No trouble at all, Mr. Taylor," the buyer returned calmly, "except that the perfume was not bought here. This," turning the box over, "is not our stock mark."

The floorwalker carefully adjusted his glasses and examined the mark.

"Ah—I am very sorry, Madam—but you must have made a mistake in thinking you purchased it here. You see—"

But at this the woman snatched up her bottle and box and flounced out—declaring loudly that she had never heard of such outrageous excuses for not exchanging goods! That she had done all her shopping there for years—but that now she would never buy another thing in that store as long as she lived, etc., etc.

"But how," I asked bewildered, when the clerk brought me the package and change for which I had been waiting, "how could she have made such a mistake?"

"She didn't make any mistake!"

Her Christmas Present

"Mistake?" sniffed the girl. "She knew she never bought that here—what's more, she never bought it anywhere!"

"Never bought it anywhere?"

"No. Somebody gave it to her Christmas—and she thought she's rather have the $4.25 or a credit slip. Oh, that's an old trick—he always have lots of them after Christmas. The staple articles which all the stores carry are sure to come back in quantities. That particular French perfume, for instance, every store in New York has it for the same price, $4.25. If she had craved the stock mark more carefully we would not have been sure that it was not bought here."

I murmured my astonishment.

And it's not confined to staple articles, the girl went on. She knew of a woman who received an expensive silk gator hand bag. And right after Christmas she went to every shop in town until she found the one which carried that particular bag—and had the money ($15) refunded! Oh, if people only knew what becomes of some of their Christmas presents!"

ORANGE TEA CAKE.

THIS recipe makes eighteen delicious, inexpensive and quickly made little tea cakes. Cream one tablespoonful of butter and the same of lard with one cupful of sugar. Add two well beaten eggs, three-quarters of a cup of milk, pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of extract of orange, three-quarters of a cup of candied currants, and three quarters cups of flour sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder. Bake fifteen minutes in muffin pans in hot oven.

Life on Venus

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

PROFESSOR T. J. J. SEE'S claim that there is intelligent life on the planet Venus has a better basis than Professor Percival Lowell's similar claim with regard to Mars, but that is not to say that Lowell may not also be right in his surmise. Professor H. Jacoby, in commenting on See's views, admits that there are no observations of physical phenomena on Venus to suggest the presence of life there, such as the curious lines which Lowell and a few others have seen on Mars. But this ignores the principal scientific ground on which an argument for life on another planet can be based. It is not the presence or absence of features like the lines on Mars, which are themselves enigmatical in character, that gives reason for thinking that a planet may be inhabited, but it is the general certainty of such planet, in size, mass, attraction with regard to the sun, possession of an atmosphere etc., which most determine the question.

Now, from this point of view, Venus is incomparably superior to Mars. Mars is a very small planet, with less than one-tenth the mass of the earth. Its gravitative force is so slight that it can not retain an atmosphere, according to the well established principles of physics. Its rapid disappearance when the sun strikes them shows that they are mere films of frost—granting that they consist of terrestrial stuff at all. Mars is so far from the sun that the temperature must be very low, and with a very rare atmosphere what moisture can it have to retain in any degree of heat on its surface?

Venus, in all these particulars, is the reverse of Mars. It is virtually of the same dimensions as the earth, and its gravitative force is only one-sixth less than that of our planet. All observations, visual and spectroscopic, show that it has a dense and very abundant atmosphere, containing plenty of water-vapor. It is very significant that its atmosphere appears to present a direct view of its surface. Many astronomers have ascribed the apparent veiling of Venus to the existence of a shield of clouds. Such a shield would tend to protect it from the radiation of the sun, while, owing to Venus's relative nearness to the centre of the solar system, must be two or three times as effective there as on the earth.

Immense three oceanic islands to exist, one situated inside the arctic circle, another in the temperate zone and the third under the equator. Suppose them to be visible, but not approachable, from one another. Let the temperate island represent the earth. The inhabitants of the latter would be justified by their own experience of climatic effects if they assumed that the far northern island, rocky, bare in aspect, and relatively small in area, was probably not inhabited; but they would reason very wrongly if they assumed that the equatorial island, as large as their own and covered with clouds, was uninhabited because it had a hotter sunshine than theirs.

Mending Laces

WHILE most women seem to think lace mending beyond them it is really no more of an art than the fine embroidery which they do and requires only patience and care. Cluny lace is the kind which will break occasionally and when small places are found needing repairs the work should be done before the trouble grows. For should they break in the water or catch in the iron the rent would probably be beyond repair. A simple darning to and fro with a fine needle and ordinary sewing cotton will be a good reinforcement for the thin places.

When there is much of a hole dampen the lace and baste the worn parts on a foundation. With the thumb and the first finger of the right hand draw the edges and then the needle should be drawn through loops of thread in the good part and the hole gradually filled in with a darning stitch that will not show when the lace is washed and pressed.

No 00 cotton thread will repair Irish lace, but for fine meshes 100 or 150 is not too fine. The lace is basted on a founda tion (several thicknesses of paper will do) and the torn portion caught firmly. Then the hanging thread is caught and the crochet hook is worked to and fro until the fine piece of trish is once more whole.

THE TAMING OF THE JUNGLE

By DR. C. W. DOYLE

CHAPTER XI.

The Lame Tiger of Huldwari.

IT was in the middle of May—just before the beginning of the lesser rains—that Ram Dees and certain wayfarers sat round a handful of fire at Lal Kooah from mere force of habit, for the heat of the evening was great, and not a breath of air stirred in the jungle. The sal trees had lost their leaves and looked like ghosts; and as the sun set in the copper sky, it lit up a landscape that might have stood for the "abomination of desolation."

The dry chirping of the cricketa, just beginning to tune their first uneasy strains, accorded with the unholy scene. Even the women waiting for the mail-cart were imbued with the depressing influence of the season, and hung their heads with a sense of despair, as though they had thought the blessed monsoon would never set in.

No one spoke, and the hookah passed from hand to hand in a dreary silence. Suddenly, the attention of those assembled was attracted by the curious action of a toya (tailor) bird in a neighboring mimosa tree. It was calling excitedly, and dropping lower from bough to bough, as though against its will.

An Enormous Cobra

"Nag!" exclaimed the banuia; and, directed by his remark, all eyes were turned to the foot of the tree, where an enormous cobra with expanded hood was swaying its head from side to side, and drawing the wretched bird to its doom through the fascination of fear.

Ram Deen, whose sympathies were always with the weak and defenceless, rose to his feet, and, throwing a dry clod of earth at the reptile, drove the creature from the tree; whilst the bird, released from its hypnotic influence, flew away.

"Brothers," said Ram Deen, "fear is the father of all sins, and the cause of cowardice. He who fears God and doeth his duty, but a coward—shabash! who can count his pangs!"

"Ha! ha!" chuckled the little bullock driver; "Ram Deen, the Fearless, shall live to be an hundred years old!"

"Nay, Goor Dutt," said Ram Deen, gravely regarding the little man, "you have known me from boyhood. No man may drive the mail to Kuladoongie without looking on death."

Ram Deen smoked awhile in silence; and when the expectation of his listeners was wrought to a proper pitch, he went on: "We all knew Nandha, the banjee, who used to go with me last year from this stage to Kuladoongie?"

"Ay, couch-wan ji," responded the carrier for the allusion. "He is gored, tulli, but not known to these honorable wayfarers who come from beyond Moradabad."

"Brothers, ye saw the plight of the lyn bird even now; so was it with Nandha, said Ram Deen.

"One evening, ere the mail arrived, he called me to where he stood by the khitar tree yonder, looking down at the ground. In the dust of the road were large footprints.

The Lame Tiger

"These be the spoor of a tiger lame in its left hind foot," said to Nandha; 'see, here it crouched on its belly, and wiped away the wheel tracks made by the mail-cart this morning.'

"'Tis the lame tiger of Huldwari, couch-wan; he is old, and he hunteth man. Gunga send he is hunting elsewhere to-night!' replied Nandha.

"When we came within a mile of the Bore bridge that night, the horses stopped suddenly; they were wild with fear, and refused to move. The night was as dark as the inside of a gourd, and beyond the circle of light made by our lanterns we could discern in the middle of the road two balls of fire close to the ground.

"'Bag! (tiger),' said Nandha, as he climbed over into the back seat; 'we be dead men, Ram Deen.'

"'Bosh!' I commanded, giving him the buggle; and as he started the lungs with a blast, I gathered up the reins, and, adding my voice to the terrors of Nandha's music, I urged the horses with whip and yell to a fury of speed; and the light of the lanterns showed the great beast leaping into the darkness to escape our speed.

"Nandha ceased not from blowing on the buggle till I took it from him by force at the door of the postoffice at Kaladoongie.

"'Ay, couch-wan ji,' responded the carrier for the allusion. 'He is gored, tulli, but not known to these honorable wayfarers who come from beyond Moradabad.'

"Nandha ceased not from blowing on the buggle till I took it from him by force at the door of the postoffice at Kaladoongie.

"It Is a Devil!"

"They gave him bhang to smoke and attack to drink ere he slept that night, for his eyes were fearful and deprived him of reason by awhile; and he looked round him as he thought he expected to see the tiger's eyes everywhere.

"The bag followed me to the hither side of the Bore bridge, and to me next morning, as we prepared to return to Lal Kooah. But I laughed at his fears, to give him courage.

"'It is a devil,' he whispered, looking cautiously round him, and I saw that the light of life seemed to leave him.

"When we came to the Bore bridge, Nandha leaped to the ground, and in the dim light of the morning I could see the tracks of a great beast on the ground, to which he pointed; and, even as we looked, there came the roar of a tiger. I could scarce hold the horses whilst Nandha, whose limbs were stiff with fear, scrambled into the back seat of the mail-cart.

"When a tiger puts its mouth to the ground and gives voice, no man may tell whence the sound comes; so I stayed not to see, if I might, where the danger lay, but gave the horses free rein.

"As we cleared the end of the bridge, Nandha screamed, 'Bag, bag!' and glancing back, I saw the tiger in full pursuit of us, and within a hundred paces.

"'Blow!' I commanded, handing the buggle to Nandha; but, though he took it from me, he appeared not to understand what he was required to do.

"'Blow!' I said once more, shaking him; but he took no heed of me, and was as one who was in his sleep. So I put Nandha's arm around him and lifted him on to the front seat beside me; and even as I pulled him to me, his head fell forward on his shoulder by the spell of fear. Then I took the buggle in his limp hand myself, and he shook so that I feared he would fall from the mail-cart.

"Be Brave, Nandha!"

"'Be brave, Nandha,' I shouted to him, 'the beast is lame, and we shall soon leave it behind.' For answer, he turned his face to me for one instant, and his lips framed the word 'bag,' but no sound came therefrom.

"Suddenly, he laughed like a child that is pleased with a toy, babbling, and saying, 'How beautiful is my lord! Suit as the sun!' and he fell forward, look my lord Hanoothi; betlike he hath a thore in his foot.' As he rose, I put an arm round him, and forced him down again; and at that instant the tiger, with another roar, The horses swerved, and would have left the road, but I reined them in, and put forth the full strength of both my arms, and as soon as Nandha felt himself free, he leaped to the ground, and advanced toward the tiger. He walked leisurely, as a loyal servant who goeth to meet his lord.

"Looking over my shoulder (for now the horses were in the middle of the road, which here stretched straight ahead of us), I beheld Nandha proceed toward the tiger, which now crouched in the road, waiting for him, its tail waving from side to side. When he was within five paces of the beast, he salaamed to the ground, and as he stooped the tiger sprang on him with another roar, and throwing him over his shoulder it bounded with him into the jungle.

"More there is to tell concerning the lame tiger of Huldwari, but here is a brave and faithful man who lies dead, and I not also looked upon fear that morning."

KONDON'S CATARRHAL JELLY

ENDS MISERY FROM INDIGESTION OR A SICK, SOUR, GASSY STOMACH.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomachs should take a little Diapepsin occasionally, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Sick Stomach, and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

ENTIRE STOCK LIST IS STRONG

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Strength, with practically every stock quoting its highest price for the week, prevailed in the trading in Wall Street today. Canadian Pacific led the railroad group. Union Pacific, Reading, Lehigh Valley and Northern Pacific were other stocks of that group to quote substantial gains. Erie was also strong.

Consolidated Gas again sprang into prominence, selling within a fraction of 140½. To-day's strength in that stock was due to rumors that the officials of the company would seek authority from the legislature within the next week to absorb among other companies the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, an $18,000,000 concern.

There was considerable buying of Great Northern preferred. Steel continued strong and active. The copper stocks were also materially changed. November gross earnings of Kansas City Southern were $651,555, an increase of $80,501. Net earnings of the road for the same month amounted to $328,059, an increase of $28,815. The curb was active and higher.

CRIPPLED FATHER'S PLEA FOR BOSTON GIRL

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 6.—C. R. Mitchell, the crippled father of Jean Mitchell, the Boston girl who faces trial to-day as an alleged accomplice of Thomas Wandles, who while attempting to enter a residence at Passaic, is here to plead for her release. He declares the girl is but sixteen years old and will ask the court to give her freedom on condition that he take her out of New Jersey.

Why Public Service Corporations Advertise

The day was when the Public Service Corporation took Cornelius Vanderbilt's position and practically said:

"The Public be damned."

To-day when it wants a franchise or permission to extend, it says:

"Dear Public, please listen."

And the Corporation advertises.

It tells what it wants to do and why, describes what it has done and what it can do for the benefit of the Public, and the attitude of the Public toward that Corporation is much more reasonable than the old attitude. Then the Corporation worked in the dark and was as regardless of the "dear Public" as a buccaneer was of his prisoner walking the plank.

Mr. McAdoo's Hudson River tunnel is an instance of a Corporation taking the Public into its confidence and treating it as if it had rights. If a Corporation can do this, Mr. Reader, to make its case clear to the Public, why don't you make known to the Public the desirability of your goods? Tell people about them.

No store is too little, no store is too big to be benefited or to be above the benefit of telling the consumer of the desirability of its goods. Advertising will build up your business, and the best way to advertise is in the Boston American. It has a circulation of nearly 400,000, reaches more families, young and old people, men and women, than all the other Boston evening papers combined.

Address the Boston American, Trade Aid Department, for further particulars along these lines.

TAMMANY HALL AGAIN ATTACKED BY FLAMES

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Tammany Hall was on fire last night for the second time in a month. Flames shot out of the rear windows, the corridors were filled with smoke and there was a dense jam in the streets, but little damage was done. Apparently the flames broke out in rubbish, paint and oils left by work men who had been repairing the damage done by the last fire. None of the records, paintings and curiosities removed then had been returned were in no danger.

Announcement

The bankrupt stock of Murch & Loomis, 100 Portland St., recently purchased by us from the assignee, is about ready to go on sale.

In consequence of a slight legal technicality, which will undoubtedly be adjusted in a day or so, the sale has been delayed. We hope, however, to have things in readiness for Monday.

BIG CAR SHOPS FOR TEWKSBURY

The New York, New Haven & Hartford and Boston & Maine railroads have secured options on 600 acres of land in the town of Tewksbury, near the Lowell city line, with the intention of building a system of car repair and construction shops to surpass anything either road has at present. The proposed shops will employ at least 5,000 men and will necessitate an outlay of a million dollars when the work of building begins.

The project is the largest either line has put forward in some time. The idea is to build a mammoth plant which will be easily accessible to even the most distant points of either system and which will have the added advantage of a central location for both.

The news was received with joy by Lowell business men, for it was said that the shops would mean a great impetus to the growth of the city, both in wealth and in the addition of thousands of skilled mechanics who would locate in the vicinity.

It was learned to-day that Herford Eller, a Lowell real estate man, acted as the agent for the railroads in negotiating the options. The options expire in two weeks. Lowell people regard it as certain that the railroads will buy, as railroad men have declared this spot a "peach." The land has been secured, both for central location and general desirability.

APPAREL FOR MEN AT BARGAIN RATES

Beckhard & Co., at No. 70-72 Tremont street, and that firm announces that, after satisfactorily adjusting insurance, it offers its entire stock of men's apparel at the warehouse carries high grade men's furnishing and clothing, and at this sale is offering garments at prices so low that they must command attention. Men of this town in fashion will find many bargains there in shirts, waistcoats, clothing, raincoats, gloves and other articles of apparel.

In YOUR Brain—and Every Brain a Magneto Is at Work

Do You Know What Work the Magneto Does—in the Brain as in the Automobile Engine?—A Good Magneto in a Good Engine Means Good Service

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

The first thing is to know yourself and the engine at work within you.

Knowing yourself and understanding as well as you can how and why you work, the second thing is TO MAKE YOURSELF WORK, and thus make your life worth while.

Serious men feel like swimmers fighting a tide. They know that, as time goes, their powers decline, and they are anxious by wise use of their strength to prove themselves good swimmers.

We are fighting the tide of time. That tide runs on forever, it sweeps us all out to the boundless ocean of eternity, eventually, and our swimming hours are short. If we want to be among those that count, we can afford to waste neither strength nor time.

Time is our great asset, and as this is written, and as you read it, time sweeps past like a mill race.

The century that we welcomed noisily—only yesterday as it seems—is one-tenth gone already.

Of the hundred years only ninety remain—how many of us have really done anything in the ten years that have flown.

And of the new year this is already the sixth day. It flies by as the trees seem to fly as you sit in the express train.

One of Heine's poems says that every time the heart beats it deals us a death blow. We are bleeding to death, and time is the life blood that we lose with each tick of the clock.

"Know thyself." Write that line above the temple of your thought as the Greeks wrote it above the entrance to the great temple on the hill.

Know at least as much as you CAN know of yourself—the most that we can know is little, for in this life we are finite forms, existing in the infinite. We are a part of eternity and forever associated with it, yet as little capable of understanding it as a common soldier of understanding the plans of Alexander marching that soldier from Macedonia to Babylon.

We cannot grasp the WHOLE of anything. We are like flies walking over the surface of a great painting. We can see only one tiny spot of the picture at a time and can never see it as a whole.

Nevertheless we should be OBSERVANT flies on the canvas of eternity and gather as much knowledge as possible of that picture—trusting that the day will come when we shall fly farther from the canvas and, with clearer sight, view and understand complete the splendid plan and idea.

To-day, observe the just comparison between YOU—who read this—and the automobile that rolls by you on the street.

This comparison will interest you and will suggest to you methods of improving your capacity.

The automobile, like yourself, is intended to do certain work.

The automobile engine is like your brain and muscles. In that automobile engine there are "cylinders," metallic containers in which gasoline mixed with air forms a gas—and the gas BY AN ELECTRIC SPARK is exploded.

Gasoline properly mixed with air explodes with tremendous force, and the force of that explosion drives the engine, turns the wheels, sends cars at high speed, makes mankind independent of distance, and builds up a new, great industry.

What the electric spark is to the motor engine THE SPARK OF WILL POWER is to your mental engine.

Remember that all the properly mixed gasoline in the world would not budge a baby carriage, much less a heavy automobile. WITHOUT THAT ELECTRIC SPARK. And all the mental force, education and experience in your brain are as worthless as unexploded gasoline in a motor cylinder, unless that power of mind is transformed into intellectual activity and moving force by the explosive spark of will power.

You may have possibilities without end—they are useless unless the explosive spark of the will is there.

An automobile stops suddenly. The driver examines all its parts. The wheels are in good order. The transmission-carrying power from the engine to the axle is perfect. There is a good supply of gasoline in the tank. The tires are well inflated—all perfect, EXCEPT—there is something wrong with the battery. That has given out. A test shows that no spark flashes in the explosive gas. Without the spark the gas is inert, as useless for motive power as so much buttermilk.

What that electric, explosive spark is to the gas in the engine's cylinder, the spark of will is to the latent power hidden away in the cylinders, the "convolutions," of your brain.

Look after your mental "ignition"—the word motorists apply to their engine's supply of explosive fire. See that the mind's power does not remain dormant and idle for lack of the spark of WILL that transforms your thought into instant, useful action.

And remember that you CAN CONTROL YOUR MENTAL IGNITION. More fortunate than the mechanical automobile, you are not dependent on anything outside of yourself. You have the spark, you have the engine, you have the power, waiting for the spark of will to come and explode it.

Man has had always within him the MAGNETO, that wonderful spark-producing machine with which automobiles have been equipped only lately.

At first the automobiles were made with a battery outside of the engine. This "liquid" or "dry cell" battery created a certain limited supply of electricity and supplied sparks to explode the gasoline. When anything happened to the battery the machine stopped.

Now every good machine has its magneto. That is an electricity-manufacturing machine which goes on making electricity and supplying sparks indefinitely, AS LONG AS THE ENGINE RUNS. You turn your crank violently, "spin your magneto," as the chauffeurs say, your spark flies out, the gas explodes, the engine turns—and thereafter, as long as the engine runs, the magneto whirls and the sparks flash in a steady stream.

In the front of your brain, just back of your forehead, there is a magneto of will power, infinitely more powerful than any part of any man-made machine. That magneto of the mind CAN be made to work by whoever WILL. In that front brain, where will power and abstract thought are born, the sparks are developed that explode the forces resident in the back brain, which is the engine. The spark of will power explodes the forces of the working brain, and there the work is done, the orders and power are sent through our nerves, which are our "transmission" to the entire body. And the man with a steadily working magneto goes on, produces, tries, struggles, like a panting engine fighting against a steep hill, and eventually reaches the top.

Sometimes the engine in an automobile will stop suddenly and balk—no sparks, no WILL POWER. Examine and understand the magneto for yourself and make up your mind to take as good care of that magneto behind your forehead as any chauffeur ever took of the sparking and speed-giving magneto in his engine.

Put your hand NOW on your forehead and realize that in there is the wonderful engine that CAN make you a success, and make up your mind that beginning this New Year, and hereafter, it shall be a conscientious chauffeur to your own brain, and give it a chance to win in life's big race. Once more, a Happy New Year to you, and the spark of will power to explode and apply the forces within you.

PROPER SPHERE OF THE WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Written for the Boston Americans

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

A FEMALE college does not properly exist for the purpose of inflaming young women upon questions of social or political policy. Young members of that sex are liable to be sufficiently inflammable without being subjected to anything in the way of artificial heat.

A woman, especially a brilliant woman, and still more especially a woman of unorganized brilliancy, is about the most difficult thing in the world to deal with in a way to prevent her latent worth from becoming a disaster to herself and profitless to the world. Explosives should be carefully guarded from the approach of fire, and tendency to eruption is the characteristic of keen womanhood in its elementary state.

Women, whether they like it or not, are different from men; there is with them more "touch and go" than with their masculine counterparts. That quality is not to be spoken of disparagingly. Sensibilities are the only means through which outward influences can reach us. A string too heavy and clumsy to vibrate can make no music.

But the more delicate and responsive one's sensibilities the more do they require the offset afforded by solid training and continuous discipline. These specimens of feminine ebullitions are capable of immense effects, but they are in this respect like fire which can accomplish an infinitude of admirable results if it is only held under restraint and not allowed to scorch and burn up everything, and burn itself out, on the way to results.

Or they are like a mettlesome colt which makes a very attractive exhibition of itself when dancing in the air, but which fails to be of practical value and to do good, honest work till it has come under the control of bit and bridle and returned to earth again.

There are certain problems which intimately concern what we used to know as the gentler sex, and in whose solution that sex will certainly have a share; but, like all problems, they will not be settled by incandescent feminine flightiness, but by intelligence acting steadily and with educated self-control.

And educated self-control is the lesson of all lessons for our young women to acquire in college; and when by faithful attention to the legitimate training of the college they have been educated out of their sweet immaturity and have gained the equipoise that is secured by mixing effervescence with a corrective of acquired gravity they will be in a superb condition to address themselves to the problems of their own sex and society and in a way that without causing disaster to themselves will be fruitful in advantage to the world.

How the People Are Euchred

Mr. Whitney, once branded a corruptionist by Senator Lodge, and Senator Lodge, once called traitor by Mr. Whitney, unite when their common interests are in peril, says Rev. Dr. Berle.

By REV. A. A. BERLE, D. D.

Pastor of the Shawmut Congregational Church, Boston.

REV. A. A. BERLE

THE announcement that Henry M. Whitney is in favor of the re-election of Henry Cabot Lodge is very interesting and important, and it will not be without influence. Politics makes strange bed fellows sometimes, but I very much doubt if it ever produced a stranger combination than this of Lodge and Whitney. It is really a very tragic situation.

Mr. Whitney has been a prominent man in commercial affairs in this State, and has been mixed up in many legislative battles which are memorable. Some of them mark the most disgraceful episodes in the history of the Commonwealth. It would seem that it would have been best not to wake up the old echoes of those enterprises by a fresh one which will convince many people that the fearful things which have been alleged against him are probably true, since this coming out for Lodge on the eve of the latter's defeat has the aspect of community of interests which does not look well for any man.

Take for example the statement made by the Hon. George Fred Williams concerning Mr. Whitney's activity in the Legislature of which Mr. Williams was a member. He said at Worcester: "Let's see what kind of a Democrat this man Whitney is. I was in the Legislature in 1890, serving my first political term. There I found this man asking for a street railway measure. I did not object to the bill itself, but fought against some of the amendments. I found there was a lot of this old corruption in the air. I precipitated an investigation. The result was a discovery of a rotten system of corrupting the Legislature, at the head of which was Henry M. Whitney. It is not unnatural that he wishes to avoid discussion with me after I exposed him in a deal involving $120,000. Again he said, 'The Republican party was defeated by William E. Russell on the issue that Henry M. Whitney was corrupting the politics of Massachusetts,' and again, 'Whitney did not again appear in the political arena until he got ready with his pipe line scheme, to supply the State with gas. Naturally he and the strong gas companies united against him. The minute he touched the Legislature again for the purpose of making a few million dollars the stench of corruption went up again.'

Old Foes in Common Terror

These are strong statements. Unquestionably, it was Mr. Williams's opposition that prevented Mr. Whitney from being elected Lieutenant-Governor. The incorruptible Democrats would not stand for such a man as Mr. Williams described Mr. Whitney to be. But the most striking fact in connection with it is that the Republican press of Massachusetts and every Republican orator on the stump took up these statements and repeated them. No man made a larger or more effective use of them than Henry Cabot Lodge, and they stand as the last recorded opinion of Mr. Lodge concerning Henry M. Whitney. It must seem strange to everybody that Mr. Whitney should declare for a man who called him a traitor and a corruptionist, who had filled the Legislature with the stench of corruption and who was a menace to every decent idea of government and justice. Has Mr. Lodge altered his opinion of Mr. Whitney or has Mr. Whitney forgiven Mr. Lodge or accepted Mr. Lodge's estimate of him?

Whatever explanations there are for this situation some things are plain. One of these is that we apparently are the advent in Mr. Lodge's behalf of a known manipulator of legislatures, as Mr. Williams freely stated and as Mr. Lodge freely repeated, branded by Mr. Lodge himself as a corruptionist. And this skilled legislature-buyer, according to Mr. Lodge, is to work this time for Mr. Lodge! Evidently, we are in for a "West End-Pipe Line-Addicks" kind of a time up at the State House. It will be well for the entire State to watch the voting, and every district to keep its eye upon its representative.

I notice Mr. Whitney's action is called by a morning newspaper "broad-minded." It is more. It is a social and moral signal of far-reaching importance, and everything about Mr. Whitney's past dealings with Massachusetts legislatures galways on the authority of Mr. Lodge's own estimate of Mr. Whitney, be it remembered) warns the people of Massachusetts to be on the watch. The public is disposed to forget some things. It has no option now but to recall everything and weigh the significance of them in the light of the battle of to-day, and watch!

But it is hardly less tragic for Mr. Lodge, and his bitterest opponents cannot but feel sorry for him. Henry Cabot Lodge has never been charged with needlessly consorting with dishonest or corrupt men. Whatever he might feel his party obligations compelled the aforesaid in him at least said to the low fellows of the lesser sort, "not any nearer than is absolutely necessary." But here he is, his predecessors making much and acclaiming the accession of a man whose character Senator Lodge has pilloried to fathers on every stump in the State. How must he feel to-day to realize the need of welcoming to his aid such a person?

How the People Are Euchred

Whether Mr. Whitney is being coerced or not, the political education, which is also the moral education of the Massachusetts voters, has advanced another step. Here we see that in a crisis, the predatory interests will always combine, no matter what party they belong to, to save their servants. Mr. Lodge has been properly called the "Pontiff of Privilege." He has been for special interests all the time. Now they see their pontiff in clutter and they are combining, and in this hour it makes no difference what former antagonisms have existed, what bitter and possibly absolutely true words have been spoken.

The people have an object lesson which should not be lost upon them. That is the way in which they are sucked right along. Fiery speeches and antagonistic rhetoric between the various interests, when the people are to be plucked no matter who wins; but combination, no matter what has to be swallowed, no matter what consults have to be turned, to keep the representative of the interests in place.

Mr. Whitney denounces Senator Lodge as a traitor and betrayer of Massachusetts when he defends the Hay-Bond treaty. Senator Lodge tells the people that Mr. Whitney is a corruptionist and a briber. But when there is danger that a real progressive Senator may be chosen, who shall be servant to the people and not the interests—the "pontiff of privilege" embraces the corruptionist and the corruptionist embraces the traitor to Massachusetts. In the language of Joe Jefferson to Mr. Harriman, "Where do the people come in?"
